3 U.S. BUREAUS LOSE IDENTITY FIRST OF JULY

Veterans' Administration Set-Up Is Announced by Gen. Hines.

COORDINATED UNITS SOUGHT IN REVISION

Quartet of Major Offices Will Replace Those Now Functioning.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Reorganization of the United States Veterans administration along lines forecast in The Post Friday will take effect July 1, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, administrator of veterans affairs, announced last night.

In the reorganization, the Veterans Bureau, the Pension Bureau and the Bureau of National Homes will lose their identity, and their various functions will be coordinated in four grand divisions of the veterans administration.

As was forecast, the office general counsel of the Veterans Bureau will be abolished, and a new office—Solicitor of the Veterans' Administration—will be created.

J. O'C. Roberts, who has been assisting Administrator Hines on matters of legislation and reorganization, will be the solicitor.

Smith to Handle Insurance Claims.

Maj. William Wolff Smith, who for eight years has been the general counsel of the Veterans Bureau, will remain with the Veterans Administration and will have the title of "Special Counsel on Insurance Claims." There are now some 4,600 such claims pending, and 5,000 more are expected in the next six months.

In the last Congress Maj. Smith was severely criticized because he was drawing an annual salary of $9,000 and at the same time drawing monthly disability compensation of $187.50 for bronchitis.

In appointing Maj. Smith to the new post, Gen. Hines considered only his ability and efficiency. Presumably, the office carries the same salary as that of general counsel, $9,000.

Other appointments announced by Administrator Hines, effective July 1, follow:

Col. George E. Ijams, now director of the Veterans' Bureau, to be assistant administrator in charge of medical and domiciliary care, construction and supplies.

Maj. O. W. Clark, now assistant director of the Veterans' Bureau in charge of adjudications, to be assistant administrator in charge of pensions and compensation.

Breining to Handle Finance.

H. W. Breining, assitsant director of the Veterans' Bureau in charge of finance, to be assistant administrator in charge of finance and insurance.

A. D. Hiller, now special assistant to Gen. Hines, to be executive assistant to the administrator.

Dr. C. M. Griffith, now medical director of the Veterans Bureau, to be medical director of the Veterans Administration; Col. C. W. Wadsworth, now in charge of the Bureau of National Homes, to be director of what will be known as the National Homes Service; Col. L. H. Tripp, chief of construction for the Veterans Bureau, to be director of the construction service; Maj. J. D. Cutter, now assistant director in charge of supplies, to be director of the service of subsistence and medical supplies E. W. Morgan, now acting Commissioner of Pensions, to be director of the Pension Service; George E. Brown, now in charge of regulations and general orders in the Veterans Bureau, to be director of Compensation Service; Maurice Collins, now assistant to Mr. Breining in the finance department of the bureau, to be director of the Finance Service; H. L. McCoy, now executive officer in the adjudication department of the bureau, to be director of the Insurance Service.

Major Step in Reorganization.

Administrator Hines explained that the changes that will take place on July 1 will mark the second and major step in the reorganization of the Veterans' Administration, a reorganization authorized by the act of July 3, 1930. This act authorized the

APRIL BUSINESS GAIN MARKED BY REPORT

Third Consecutive Month Is Recorded as Showing Trade Recovery.

(Associated Press).

The Commerce Department reported yesterday that business conditions generally showed continued, and in some instances, marked improvement during April.

Greater than seasonal improvement was shown by manufacturers of food products, automobiles, leather and shoe products, cement and tobacco, but iron and steel and nonferrous metal products manufactures were smaller than in March.

"April was the third consecutive month," the department said, "in which the volume of business in the United States, after allowing for normal seasonal trends, showed further slight expansion from the low levels established in January, while the seasonal decline occuring in early May has been slightly larger than usual.

"Industrial production as measured by the Federal Reserve Boards' seasonally adjusted index, registered another increase in April, and in that month was 9 per cent above the December level. Output of manufacturers was larger than in March, owing chiefly to greater than seasonal improvement in the food products, automobile, leather, shoe, cement and tobacco industries, while iron and steel and nonferrous metal production was smaller than in the preceding month. The textile industries maintained recent gains at March levels with the cotton industry especially active.

"The index of mineral output, adjusted for seasonal changes, increased nearly 5 per cent from the low level of the depression established in March.

"Building construction in April as measured by contracts awarded decreased 9 per cent from the preceding month instead of continuing the seasonal increase, usual at this period, which was manifest in February and March. A further decline of seasonal proportions occurred in the first half of May. In general, residential building has been holding up better than commercial and industrial types.

"Expansion in manufacturing and mining industries and the seasonal resumption of outdoor work in agriculture and building, has brought further improvement in the employment situation with reduction of part-time work and a shrinkage in the number of unemployed since January. Factory employment, as a whole, has increased by about the normal seasonal amount since the first month of the year when a low level for the depression was reached.

"Rail distribution of freight as measured by car loading has shown normal seasonal expansion in March and again in April, but shipments of merchandise in the latter month increased less than usual. Dollar sales of department stores in April after allowance for seasonal trend and the early date of Easter, increased by 8 per cent from March to April, and in the latter month were less than 2 per cent below the total for April 1, 1930, and less than 5 per cent below that of April 1, 1929, despite the decline in retail prices during the past two years."

CANNON CHALLENGES NYE GROUP'S POWER

Bishop, in Letter, Declares Senate Funds Committee Lacks Jurisdiction.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., yesterday challenged on three points the right of the Senate campaign funds committee to investigate his use of anti-Smith funds in 1928.

In a letter to Chairman Nye, of the committee, Bishop Cannon denied his campaign organization had taken part in congressional elections.

He said the committee had no authority to investigate charges of crime and asserted the corrupt practices act, which he has been charged with violating, is unconstitutional.

Bishop Cannon, in his letter yesterday, contended the investigating resolution authorizing creation of the committee had only authorized it to investigate senatorial elections. He added the sole purpose of his 1926 organization had been to defeat the Democratic presidential candidate, former Gov. Alfred E. Smith.

Senator Nye, in the recent hearing, placed in the record the call for Asheville conference at which the anti-Smith movement was organized, indicating it was also designed to aid in the election of dry Democratic senatorial and congressional candidates.

"It is true," Bishop Cannon said, "that the Asheville conference was called for the purpose indicated in the statement you read, but it is not true that the headquarters committee of the anti-Smith Democrats was organized or operated to elect dry Democratic senators and representatives. That was left to the workers in the several States."

Attacker Cuts Woman; Foster Son Is Hunted

New Egypt, N. J., May 31 (U.P.).—Charles Forker, 24, of Philadelphia, was sought tonight for questioning in connection with an attack with a hatchet on Mrs. Lily Malsbury, 56, his foster mother.

Mrs. Malsbury was attacked while in the farm home on her husband's farm near here. Her husband, David, in the barn at the time, heard her scream and rushed into the house. She was found on the floor, two deep gashes in her head. At the hospital it was said she probably would recover.

McKellar Is Injured In Second Car Wreck

Memphis, Tenn., May 31 (A.P.).—Senator K. D. McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, suffered cuts and bruises and possibly a rib fracture, and A. H. Lawo, a Memphis business man, was cut and bruised as their auto ran off a highway near Covington, Tenn., late today and overturned.

The accident was Senator McKellar's second within a few months. He was severely hurt October 3, when his car was wrecked near Lawton, Okla. Senator McKellar and Mr. Lawo today were on their way to Dyersburg, Tenn., where the senator was to deliver a Memorial Day address.

FACING REVOLT, BREUNING MAY ASK DEBT CUT

Chancellor Is Expected to Seek Moratorium to Save Republic.

ALL OTHER AVENUES OF RELIEF BLOCKED

Demand for Alleviation Will Carry Menace to German Credit.

Berlin, May 31 (A.P.).—If Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius propose a moratorium of German war debt payments at the Anglo-German conference at Chequers this week, it is safe to say that the proposal will be prompted only by a desire to avoid a reaction at home which they believe might oust the present German cabinet and possibly threaten the republic itself.

The moratorium, it is learned, if it is proposed to Prime Minister MacDonald or Foreign Minister Henderson of Great Britain at all, will be asked on the ground that other avenues of ameliorating Germany's economic distress are closed and that unless there is an alleviation the government's internal difficulties may become extremely acute.

Bruening Realizes Dangers.

Nobody knows better than Chancellor Bruening with what dangers to German credit and economy a demand for a moratorium, or for a revision of the Young plan, is fraught. Therefore he and the foreign minister probably first will point out to their British colleagues that Germany's creditors could themselves ease the country's situation by extending long-term credits to her and by letting down tariff walls.

If Germany is loaned long-term capital, at reasonable rates, one may read in the German press any day, and if she is afforded an opportunity of increasing her exports by a lowering of tariff barriers, she can continue the Young plan annuities, but if she is kept capital-hungry and barred from the world market—so the press argument runs—then only a reduction of her obligations, at least temporarily, by a moratorium, can save her from economic collapse.

That the World Bank for International Settlements at Basel found itself unable to furnish long-term credits has meant the dashing of another hope cherished in Germany.

Should the chancellor and the foreign minister find, after counseling with MacDonald and Henderson, that the present moment of world depression is psychologically the poorest imaginable for urging a moratorium or a revision, nevertheless they may, by conditions at home, be compelled to press for concrete results on the reparations issue.

Position Is Difficult.

Chancellor Bruening and his colleague find themselves in a very difficult position. The movement of Adolf Hitler is by no means receding. The recent Oldenburg elections, in which the National Socialists captured two-thirds of the local Diet seats, show that, on the contrary, it is gaining.

The Hitlerites openly declare that a demand for revision of the Young plan will be one of their first acts if they should assume power.

There is also Hjalmer Schacht, one of the signers of the Young plan, who is denouncing the plan on every occasion.

The demand made yesterday by the Korrespondenz, organ of the Centrist party of Chancellor Bruening, for a revision of the Young plan today was seconded by the Catholic Bavarian People's party, which passed a resolution to "warn the government anew to make clear to countries abroad the impossibility of further tribute payments, and to demand their cessation or alleviation."

Bruening Policy Assailed.

The gathering of the steel-helmet organization at Breslau yesterday and today has further served to fan the flames of nationalist indignation at the "patience policy" of Bruening

$800,000,000 IN U.S. BONDS WILL BE SOLD

Secretary Mellon Plans Issue for Retiring Certificates.

TO PAY $589,000,000 OF SHORT-TERM DEBT

Will Bear 3⅛ Per Cent Rate, Maturing in 1949; Big Deficit Looming.

(Associated Press.)

The first move by the Treasury to replace its huge short-term security issues with long-term bonds was announced last night by Secretary Mellon.

He said an issue of eighteen-year 3⅛ per cent bonds totaling $800,000,000 would be sold to the public on June 15.

The bonds will be used to retire $589,000,000 of certificates of indebtedness issued while declaring receipts and increasing expenditures created a deficit of more than $1,000,000,000.

Maturing in 1949, the bonds will be redeemable on and after June 15, 1948.

Retirement of the certificates will reduce the short-term debt to approximately $2,900,000,000.

Securities Issues Large.

Since the falling of income taxes indicated that the Government would finish the fiscal year with a huge deficit for the first time since 1920, the Treasury has issued securities totaling more than $2,600,000,000 in less than three months. About half of the amount was to refund outstanding securities and the remainder to meet the needs of the Government and to finance veterans' loans.

The Treasury issued on March 15 a total of $1,300,000,000 in bonds and certificates and used $1,100,000,000 to retire maturing Treasury notes. Since then it has issued certificates and bills in amounts ranging from $50,000,000 to $270,000,000.

In addition to the certificates falling due on June 15, the Treasury must pay about $90,000,000 interest on the public debt. On the other side of the ledger, however, it will receive about $170,000,000 in payments from foreign governments on war debts and interest. Also it will collect the second installment of tax on 1930 income, but if the $800,000,000 decrease registered in the first payment in March is reflected in June revenues the total will not amount to more than $300,000,000.

Has $1,004,159,780 Deficit.

With the end of the fiscal year just 30 days away the Treasury has an actual deficit of $1,004,159,780. Receipts since last July 1 were listed in its last daily statement at $2,793,931,080 and expenditures at $3,800,090,860.

The chief source of the huge revenue decline was a drop of $320,000,000 in income taxes. It was one of the things which recently prompted Secretary Mellon to advocate revision of the Nation's basic tax system to provide a more stable income. He said that in years of good business the income tax provides ample revenue.

The Secretary's suggestion, with the idea of using an excise tax as the base of the tax system, brought immediate opposition from some members of Congress. Cutting down Government expenditures to meet its income was advocated. While no official has recommended tax revision it has been pointed out that conditions between the start of the new fiscal year, July 1, and next November would enable the Treasury to judge how much income it could count on in the year and then advise Congress as to its needs.

Later Issue Looming.

The bond issue will place the Treasury in an easier position with its short term debt. Experts expect, however, that later in the summer another issue of bonds probably will be offered for public subscription and enable the Treasury to reduce its short debt probably by $1,000,000,000.

The bond issue will have little effect upon the deficit for the present

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT AS BOMBS BURST NEAR CATHOLICS' PROPERTY

Heaviest Rain in Year Brings Mercury Drop

Downpour Biggest Since Drought Began; Clouds and Showers Today Will Give Way to Fair and Warmer Tomorrow.

More than an inch and a half of rain fell over Washington up to 8 o'clock last night in the biggest downpour this section has experienced since the drought set in more than a year ago.

Little damage was reported in the Capital and nearby Virginia and Maryland by the wind and rain, although scores of automobiles were stalled with wet ignition systems and gutters and streets weer flooded when seweres in some parts of the city proved inadequate for carrying off the excess moisture.

The mercury, which had hovered around 90 degrees and above during most of Friday and Saturday, was hurtled downward following the rain. It was still around 82 at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, but the heat began to break with the rain around 5 o'clock, and at 6 o'clock the reading was 64 degrees. It was still in that neighborhood—65—at 10 o'clock last night.

The forecast for today calls for showers early this morning and partly cloudy the rest of the day. Tomorrow will be fair and warmer.

Two tons of rock were loosened as Broad Branch Creek in Rock Creek Park rose to a record height with the heavy rain and crashed down into Broad Branch road between Grant road and each drive. The road was covered by about a foot of water as the storm ran its course.

Traffic was blocked by the stone, water and debris and remained in a snarl until Park Policemen were called to straighten things out. Waters of the creek undermined the rock

Police of Bologna Believe Explosives Are Threat to Churchmen.

CARDINALS CALLED TO EXTRA MEETING

Pontiff Virtually Accuses Italian Government of Bad Faith.

Bologna, Italy, May 31 (A.P.).—Four bombs were exploded here during the night in the vicinity of Catholic institutions, killing one person and injuring two. Thirty arrests were made.

The explosions did little damage to property.

Three of the bombs exploded at irregular intervals when no one was nearby in the streets.

A brigadier of a Carabainier patrol picked up the fourth one and it went off in his hand, killing him instantly. A nearby militiaman and a passing civilian were injured.

The fact that the bombs were placed near Catholic quarters caused police to believe they were put there as a threat against Catholics in connection with the present Catholic Action agitation.

Nothing was published here about the explosions and the police refused to make known the identity of those arrested. However, it is believed the suspects are Fascists youths who have been active in recent antichurch demonstrations.

Cardinals Gather Today.

Vatican City, May 31 (U.P.).—Pope Pius XI tonight summoned members of the College of Cardinals in Rome to an extraordinary session tomorrow in connection with the Holy See's ineffectual protests against the Fascist attitude toward Catholic organizations.

The meeting, which was called shortly after the Pope in a birthday address had virtually accused the Italian government of bad faith, will be in the Consistorial Hall, where approximately 22 cardinals will assemble to hear the pontiff outline the present situation and decide on future action.

The summons was considered particularly significant, as the Pope rarely calls special meetings of this character.

Meanwhile, it was believed the Pope, who has placed the Azione Cattolica under supervision of the bishops in various provinces as a reply to the Fascist charges, would take advantage of the meeting of cardinals tomorrow to show a unanimity of opinion among them. It recently has been suggested in the Fascist press that the cardinals have been divided over the activities of the organizations and that some of them would resign soon.

The Pope, however, in statements to visitors, said there was an unswerving attachment to all branches of the Azione Cattolica.

Breach Is Widening.

Rome, May 31 (A.P.).—The breach between the Italian government and the Vatican widened tonight with the receipt of information that four bombs were exploded near Catholic property at Bologna, with Premier Mussolino continuing to close Catholic Action clubs throughout Italy and with Pope Piux XI denouncing Fascist education as "given to hate, irreverence and to violence."

In an address before a group of ecclesiastics at the Vatican, the Pope announced he would appeal to the Vatican treaty and the concordat as a basis for a solution of the difficulties. He said the Catholic Action Society "had been and is most precious" to him.

Premier Mussolini continued to carry out his order closing the Catholic Action clubs throughout Italy, and it was estimated that by tomorrow night 15,000 of the clubs would have been closed by the police, affecting 500,000 members of the organization.

The papel newspaper organ, Osservatore Romano, today published a list 2½ columns long of alleged anticlerical incidents. The list included invasion of monasteries, slapping of priests, an attempt to burn the bishop's palace at Verona, the trampling of the Pope's portrait and the sacking of Catholic clubs.

Palace Declared Set Afire.

The bishop's palace at Verona was set afire, the paper said, by a group of

HANGAR, PLANES HIT BY VIRGINIA CYCLONE

Two Mechanics, Swept Along by Twister, Battered by Hailstones.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 31.—A miniature cyclone swept over a narrow strip of 6 miles northwest of Charlottesville about 3 p. m. Saturday, wrecking the $8,000 steel hangar at Wood Airport, operated by the Dixie Flying Service, Inc., damaging four planes and uprooting a half hundred trees.

At the residence of D. D. Damore, across the highway from the airport, the chimney was demolished, most of the window lights broken and a dozen trees uprooted.

Hail, which followed the windstorm, fell to a depth of several inches.

The roof was lifted from the hangar and hurtled into a field, some parts being found wrapped around a tree half a mile distant.

Elwood Weast and Albert Harrell, mechanics, at work in the hangar shops, were swept along by the wind some 200 yards into a bottom. Their faces and arms were covered with welts made by large hail stones.

A plane from White Sulphur Springs circled over Farmington for five minutes, until the twister passed before Pilot J. H. Brown landed with his passenger. Fortunately, four of the company's planes were away at the time, in Washington, Richmond, Winchester and Lynchburg, but two planes in the hangar were badly damaged. Both were sold and were to have been delivered this week.

A plane owned by W. J. Carr, of the Virginia Public Service Co., was only partially damaged, while a heavy transport plane staked outside the hangar escaped damage. The loss occasioned by destruction of hangar, machine shop and machinery is estimated at $8,000. All planes were insured against windstorms.

Man Stabbed to Death; Hunt Made for Suspect

Special to The Washington Post.

Lester Shilling, 30, was stabbed to death last night at Smithsburg, a town at the foot of South Mountain, 8 miles east of here.

Ted Brown was named by a jury of inquest as his slayer. He fled after the stabbing and had not been located tonight, although he is believed to be hiding in the mountains.

TEAGUE LAUDS FARM BODY AS HE RETIRES

Says Cooperative Marketing Has Made Great Strides in Last Two Years.

(Associated Press.)

Charles C. Teague resigned as vice chairman of the Farm Board with the conviction that "during the last two years more progress has been made in cooperative marketing than has been made in any previous ten-year period."

He told President Hoover so in a letter of resignation made public yesterday, in which he set forth the development of cooperatives as the board's most important work.

Mr. Teague, whose resignation becomes effective today after serving a year beyond his regular appointment, said that during his service "I have never observed any action influenced by section or politics," and added:

"It was, indeed, fortunate, during the present serious economic condition through which the country has been passing, that the farmers of the country have had this important legislation (agricultural marketing act), with adequate finances and administered by a group of men of your selection, who have such a deep and sympathetic attitude toward the problems of agriculture."

Speaking of cotton and wheat price stabilization endeavors, Mr. Teague said: "It has, of course, been impossible to be helpful under these most difficult and trying conditions without at times taking some chances of loss to the revolving fund.

"Had it been administered as a banking trust or fund," he continued, "it would have been of little help to agriculture under existing conditions."

He termed price stabilization efforts entirely justified and predicted benefits to agriculture and business "far outweighing any cost to the Treasury."

Expressing the belief cooperatives will have an important influence in the stabilization of markets, Mr. Teague added that a large number of existing associations would have perished under declining prices had it not been for the revolving fund of $500,000,000 set aside by Congress.

Mr. Teague is returning to California to engage again in his citrus fruit business.

Golfers Laugh at Stabbing 'Trick' as Man Falls Dead

Maryland Hitch-Hiker's Threat to Commit Suicide Regarded as Joke by Crowd; Companion Deserted so Victim Could End Life.

A hitch hiker stopped off near Claude Brown's miniature golf course at Ridgeville, Md., late Saturday night and told 50 players he was going to commit suicide.

They gathered around him. He placed a pen knife on his chest and struck it with his fist. "Send for the doctor; I cut myself, he said.

No one could pull such pranks on the golfers. They all laughed. Again the stranger punched the knife. The golfers agreed it was a good trick. A third time he struck the knife on his chest.

He slumped to the ground dead.

Yesterday he was identified as Duke Davis, 37 years old, a painter, of Baltimore.

Those near the golf course recalled that he came into the village with a second man. They found this man, after the death of Davis, sitting on the steps of a church nearby. His name was Carl Killer, 24 years old, of Philadelphia.

They asked hmi why he left the other hiker. He told them Davis said he was going to commit suicide and he left him so he could do it.

All Air Mail Services Of Canada Canceled

Ottawa, Ontario, May 31 (A.P.).—Decision of Premier R. B. Bennett to cancel all air mail services of Canada at an early date was made known tonight.

Blackmail Plot Laid To Mexican Officials

Chief of Departmental Secret Police, Member of Presidential Military Staff and Civilian Are Detained; Tong Funds Hinted.

Mexico City, May 31 (A.P.).—An alleged blackmail scheme, said to involve high government officials, today resulted in the detention of Pablo Meneses, chief of the secret police of the interior department; Fernando Palacios, a high-ranking member of the presidential military staff, and Gonzalo Vertiz, a civilian.

Gen. Augustin Mora, commander of the military staff, was ordered by President Ortiz Rubio to place himself at the disposition of court authorities pending an investigation. The department of the interior said Meneses had been "provisionally" relieved of his post.

Nicefero Guerrero, federal district prosecutor, said that, according to his information, money had been extorted from Chinese residents here to obtain through certain influential parties the expulsion from Mexico of 37 members of a rival Oriental tong.

Meneses is accused of having received money from Chinese who desired their enemies deported.

Mora's name was mentioned only indirectly, but the president instructed him to report to court authorities. He remained at liberty today, but the other three men were being held at the Belem jail.

The district prosecutor has turned the case over to the first penal court.

War Birds' Demobilization Held Up by Mountain Storms

Airmen Expect to Start for Home Fields Today After Flying 3,000,000 Miles in Army Maneuvers Without Serious Accident.

(Associated Press).

War birds that flew 3,000,000 miles without a serious accident in the Nation's most gigantic air maneuvers, yesterday awaited demobilization at the close of war games begun two weeks ago.

Bad weather, only unconquered foe of the first air division during its two weeks of tactics, frustrated initial steps at demobilization yesterday. Officially, the planes were scheduled to scatter at noon today but several units took to the air yesterday in an attempted early start for home fields. Unfavorable flying conditions over the mountains, however, held them up.

Satisfaction with the maneuvers was expressed by Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois and his general staff, who were at Bolling Field to clear up details of demobilization.

A report was made showing that of the 720 officers and 644 enlisted men, which together with observers made a total of 1,400 people carried in the division, minor injuries were sustained by but two.

Eleven planes were returned to stations during the two weeks. Five ships required major repairs. Two were "complete failures," and seven were repaired en route.

By noon today, weather permitting, bases will be cleared at Bolling Field here, Logan Field, Baltimore; Langley Field, Hampton, Va.; Bel-men who drove up in an automobile, sprinkled gasoline on the great doors, and set them ablaze.

It is also charged that two monasteries were invaded at Civita Vecchia Thursday and that the door of the Episcopal Palace there was forced open by men who slapped the face of the vicar general, Mgr. Compagnucci. At Cisalgo, it said, a parish priest's face was slapped, and it charged that Fascists entered three Catholic clubs at Venice, trampled the portraits of the Pope and King Victor Emmanuel, leaving Mussolini's untouched.

Tables, chairs and paintings were tossed out of the windows into the canals, it was charged, and at the Tarcisio Club, it was alleged, 100 Fascists operated under the eyes of the militia, who made no move to restrain them.

The paper said posters were put up in Rome reading, "Death to the Pope, to the priests and to the Catholic Action!"

Close as a complete rupture between the government and the Vatican seemed, however, it was believed that the situation was still not without some hope of settlement.

Hope Still Is Held.

Although it was learned on good authority the Vatican had been notified that Premier Mussolini had decided definitely to dissolve the Catholic Action Society throughout Italy, government officials said the dissolution could still be avoided.

The premier's order was being carried out in the meantime, however.

There was also an indication tonight that the American Ambassador, John W. Garrett, would be drawn into the affair.

Papal Count Edward Hearn, head of the Knights of Columbus, announced today he would ask Ambassador Garrett tomorrow to file a protest with Foreign Minister Dino Grandi against the closing of playgrounds and clubhouses of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Hearn was said to be indignant when the San Lorenzo playground was closed yesterday and he ordered the remaining centers to be immediately locked up. He said he would tell Ambassador Garrett that the Knights of Columbus feel the playgrounds are property managed by their organization for Roman children, regardless of creed, at a cost of $75,000 a year, that the playgrounds have no connection with the church, and that the Italian government has no right to close them.

Seventy-Fourth Birthday.

Today was the seventy-fourth birthday of Pope Pius XI, and he described it as "one of my saddest days."

Addressing a group of ecclesiastics, he made a reference to fascist education "as one of hate, irreverance and violence." Repeating his statement of last night, he said, "one may ask our life, but not our silence."

He said it was his right and duty to have recourse to the lateran treaty and the concordat in the present situation and to make representations, which he said was being done.

Confusion over the exact nature of Mussolini's plan was greater today than yesterday.

It was strongly denied by church officials that the Pope, by putting bishops in charge of the branches of the Catholic society, was attempting to throw the protecting cloak of the church about them.

Following upon this move, however, it was said, the issue is drawn now between the Fascist government and the church and the Pope himself, while previously there were intermediaries in the persons of the officials of the various clubs and organizations.

Reliance on Concordat.

Vatican City, May 31 (A.P.).—Proclaiming his reliance on the Lateran treaty and the concordat for a solution of the present difficulties between the Vatican and the Italian government, Pope Pius XI today described the events of the last two or three days as "the first manifestation of proof of an education that is the antithesis of Christian and civil education and entirely given to hate, to irreverance and to violence."

The Pope's statement was made in an address to the ecclesiastics at a commemoration ceremony at the Vatican.

"We have not lost one day," he said, "in appreciating the inestimable benefits of the establishment of religious instruction in schools—an education that should also be educational.

"But there has begun too soon the destruction with the left hand of that which the right hand had built and which, it was said, it was desired to build. It is a saddest spectacle to which Rome and Italy have been treated and it has revealed already how far advanced is the work of destruction of all good education."

The Pope spoke of today, his birthday, as "sad and unhappy" because of "grave griefs that greeted me yesterday in that which has been and is most precious to us—the Catholic Action Society, and particularly the juvenile and universities groups."

Right to Be Informed.

"It is well known that we have the right and therefore the duty to invoke the treaty and the concordat," he said. "The Catholic world, and the whole world, has a right to be informed that when we were confronted with opposition and nonobservance of eventual unilateral decisions we have not failed to take the proper measures and that these measures are now in progress.

"But this can not prevent the Bishop of Rome and Primate of Italy from protesting immediately against that which happened yesterday and the manner in which it was allowed to happen.

"As we said last night, one can ask for our life, but not our silence, when all the things that form the delight of our heart and the delight of God are being ruined."

"These things are being ruined," the pontiff said, "because in Fascist Italy even the least parochial bulletin must undergo censorship.

"First there was a press campaign, based on irreverence and calumnies; then another street campaign also based on irreverence and vertiable indecency, overpowering with violence and cruelty, of the few by the many, always to the injury of our sons and even of our daughters.

Deserved Different Treatment.

"This campaign, thus prepared, broke yesterday on the Catholic associations of all of Italy with incredible suddenness, with invasions, confiscations and sequestrations, while the night before our nuncio and our representative was told that there was nothing to be said to him.

"We thought, and we still think, that we deserved a very different treatment."

The pontiff declared that in his first encyclical he was the first to "show the way and hour to peace and conciliation," and this disposition, he said, he had continued to display.

Italy and its government, he asserted, were honored in its encyclical on marriage. Again, he said, in an open letter to the Archbishop of Milan, he had invoked cooperation.

Finally, he said, in his recent encyclical, he noted with pleasure Italy's cooperative movement," and added, "The whole world knows how we were treated regarding that which is nearest to our hearts, and which we have often shown is religious and not political in character."

Youth ought to be glad and proud to suffer for the church, he said, and he knew they were animated by this high ideal.

"Therefore it is useless to tell you not to fear," he went on. "We add also that we shall be with you forever."

He reminded them that the bishops now are their leaders and that they "must await the hour when Divine Providence gives light and peace."

TRADE BODY TO URGE VIRGINIA EXPLOITING

Chamber in Richmond to Get Plea; Water Trip to End This Morning.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Aboard the Southland, en Route to Washington, May 31.—The Board of Trade, through its National Capital committee, will seek cooperation with the Chamber of Commerce of Virginia, with headquarters in Richmond, in exploiting the Virgina country where Amerean history began, it was announced today by George W. Offutt, president of the board, and A. C. Case, chairman of the committee.

The board official made the announcement after a day spent by the 160 members of the party at Jamestown Island, Williamsburg and Yorktown.

Gen. Herbert B. Crosby, District Commissioner in charge of police, in his only speech during the trip, declared that every American should see this territory.

Stronger Legislation Urged.

The commissioner, in an interview, today reiterated his statement that he would continue presing law enforcement activities in Washington. He pointed to the necessity of obtaining stronger legislation in order to deal with gambling, liquor sellers and potential gunmen.

Gen. Crosby revealed that the Commissioners are considering plans to be placed before the next session of Congress asking for legislation which would make it easier for police to gain access to liquor and gambling places. The advice of Corporation Counsel William W. Bride has been sought on the matter.

He also stated that the present practice of raiding suspected liquor and gambling places without warrants had been discussed with District Attorney Leo A. Rover, but declined to discuss the outcome of the conference. The raids will continue, he indicated, and said that the ranks of bootleggers and gamblers have been thrown into consternation.

Maj. Henry G. Pratt, superintendent of police, is handling the gambling and liquor situation in Washington to his entire satisfaction, eGn. Crosby said.

Several Consultations.

The Commissioner on the trip had been striving to avoid any reference to his official position. Despite this, he had several consultations with civic leaders on the boat upon various municipal problems. He spent an hour after dinner with A. J. Driscoll discussing tariff problems. Mr. Driscoll, who is leading a fight against the proposal to change Iowa and Thomas Circles, said the Commissioner was in favor of the plan and little progress had been made in changing his attitude.

Mr. Case in discussing the new plans for the Greater Capital campaign said emphasis would be placed on the advertising of Williamsburg with hope that the historic town may plan a part in the George Washington bicentennial. John D. Rockefeller, jr., has already spent several million dollars in restoration of famous buildings.

The Board of Trade party spent almost the entire day at Jamestown Island and Williamsburg, but late in the afternoon the Southland steamed down the James River to Yorktown. The excursion party reembarked after sunset for a moonlight cruise and the last gala night aboard ship. The Southland is due to dock in Washington early tomorrow morning.

and Curtius, while at Leipzig, where the largest republican party, the Social Democracy, is holding a convention, its leaders are having a hard time to persuade their followers to support the Bruening government and its fiscal measures.

The Communists also are doing everything possible to stir up the unemployed masses against the Bruening cabinet.

But over and above the danger of radicalism of the left and right there is the insistent demand of the Rhenish and Ruhr Valley industrialists for "a more active foregin policy." This means refusing to continue longer the obligations of the Young plan.

Claim Last Chance for Bruening.

It was these circles which launched a bitter attack on Foreign Minister Curtius while he was at Geneva and which more recently attacked the position of Finance Minister Dietrich.

In the Bergwerks Zeitung, organ of the coal industry, it has been hinted that the industrialists were giving Chancellor Bruening one more chance—at Chequers.

By the force of these circumstances at home, Bruening and Curtius may feel themselves compelled to propose to MacDonald and Henderson a choice between pledging their help toward a moratorium or permitting Germany to be inundated by a wave of nationalism, the disturbing effects of which can not be foretold.

Buttonholes for Linguists.

Paris, May 31 (U.P.).—The Paris committee of the International Hotel Alliance has proposed that colored buttonholes be worn by members of hotel staffs proficient in foreign language, a different color corresponding to each language. The International Hotel Alliance is composed of hotels in 24 different countries in four continents, and, if accepted, the proposition would be far-reaching.

HOWARD GRADUATES URGED TO GO SOUTH

University Head Asks Class to Free Young Whites From 1-Party Rule.

Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president of Howard University, in a baccalaureate address yesterday on the university campus advised graduate to take up life work in smaller home communities of the South, where they might be instrumental in enfranchising young white men and women from the one-party political system, under which, he stated, "white men and women vote for the next President before they are born."

With reference to being outspoken, for which he himself has undergone criticism this year, he said:

"One can do no good to any group by lying. The least service you may do to the American people is to tell the truth without regard to position or loss of position. What America needs is not more speech-making, but more sincere, well-directed truth telling. In the State of Mississippi white people, as well as colored, are effectively disfranchised. Of course, if you wish to be a success in your profession and avoid trouble, you should not say anything about it. Nevertheless, it is true, that a lack of bipartisan government makes it impossible for young white men and women to express themselves at the polls."

With reference to the Constitution, he advised the graduates that the nature of their work did not contemplate revolution, but rather a fight to bring the Constitution back into public life. Truth telling, he stated, would prove the greatest agency in accomplishing this purpose.

Cervices were held in the specially constructed amphitheater where Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, canon of the Washington Cathedral, will deliver the commencement address Friday, instead of Will W. Alexander, of Atlanta, as previously announced. The customary academic procession was eliminated. Music was furnished by the university choir, directed by R. W. Tibbs, with Ethyl Wise as soloist. The invocation was said by the Rev. William C. Gordon, and the benediction by the Rev. D. E. Wiseman.

LAWYER WILL HEAD ST. JOHN'S COLLEGE

Douglas Huntley Gordon, 29, of Baltimore, Is Elected New President.

Annapolis, Md., May 31 (A.P.).—Douglas Huntly Gordon, 29, Baltimore lawyer, has been elected president of St. John's College, one of the oldest in the country, it was announced tonight by Walter H. Buck, chairman of the board of visitors and governors executive committee.

A 1926 honor graduate of Harvard College, and of Harvard Law School two years later, Mr. Gordon is one of the country's youngest college presidents.

He succeeds Dr. Enoch Barton Garey, president from 1923 until his resignation in April, 1929. Dr. Garey reorganized the college, making it a liberal arts institution instead of a military establishment. In the meantime, Dean Robert E. Bacon has been in charge of the college administration.

Mr. Gordon, a son of the late Douglas H. Gordon, one-time president of the Baltimore Trust Co., is a member of the board of visitors and governors of St. John's and has been secretary for the last year. He is a member of the House of Delegates of the State Legislature.

St. John's, founded in 1696 as King William's School, now has an enrollment of 300. Dr. Garey, a graduate of the college and of the Military Academy at West Point, abolished the military establishment and during his administration the scholastic standard was raised and the enrollment doubled.

Mr. Gordon is also a director of the Peabody Institute here and a trustee of the Gilman School, of which he is a graduate. At Harvard College, from which he was graduated Magna Cum Laude and with a Phi Beta Kappa key, he was editor of the freshman yearbook and of the Harvard Advocate, literary magazine. Born in Baltimore, a member of a family originally from Fredericksburg, Va., he is unmarried.

Schneider Cup Team Veterna Hurt in Crash

Sherburn, Yorkshire, England, May 31 (A.P.).—Flight Lieut. H. M. Schofield, a member of the British Schneider Cup Team of 1927, was severely injured today when the autogiro in which he was giving a demonstration at the Yorkshire Aero Club crashed from an altitude of 70 feet before a large crowd.

The machine was banking when it was caught by a sudden gust of wind and the motor stalled. It fell heavily and Schofield was picked up suffering from serious head injuries.

Crowded Subway Train Halted; Panic Follows

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—A crowded subway train returning from Coney Island was thrown into panic today when a short circuit caused a series of vivid flashes and brought the train to an abrupt halt.

Ten persons were slightly injured in the rush for exits.

YEAR'S HEAVIEST RAIN BRINGS MERCURY DROP in several places along the road and toppled it into the highway.

The park police cleared enough of the road to allow one lane of traffic to pass. The highway at that point is normally a three-lane road. The rock will be cleared away as soon as waters have subsided enough to permit the work to proceed.

Rock Creek reached one of the highest levels in the memory of the park police, but no damage or interference with traffic was reported.

Cellars in the northwest section, particularly along Nevada avenue, in the 5300 block, were flooded by the storm. While the rain was heaviest sewers on Connecticut avenue between Porter and Ordway streets proved inadequate for the excessive load. The water rose above the running boards of parked automobiles.

Fifty autos were stuck on the Washington-Richmond highway between Alexandria and Fredericksburg. The majority had skidded from the narrow road and were caught in the soft mud off the pavement.

Scores of motorists in nearby Maryland, were stalled by the heavy rain. Hundreds were forced to halt until it passed and thirty were stalled outright between Bethesda and Silver Spring on the East-West highway. Gutters were flooded and in spots motorists drove through water above the hub caps at the height of the rain.

Sligo Creek, in Montgomery County, overflowed its banks and flooded the Colesville road. The creek rose approximately 9 feet, it was estimated, but the main cause of the flood was a jam of logs which backed the water up. Montgomery County Policeman Charles Barnes notified State Road Inspector Samuel McCeney, who removed the obstruction.

Traffic was hopelessly snarled for several hours on the Chesapeake Beach road 10 miles below Marlboro. The road was flooded by the rain and dozens of cars were drowned out. Maryland State police were called and managed to start some of the cars, opening the road to traffic.

Several washouts were reported to police in the northwest section. One was in front of 5315 Nevada avenue. A second was reported in an alley between Legation and Livingston streets near Connecticut avenue.

Six in Italy Face Trial in Bombing

Communists to Be Arraigned, Accused After 20 Deaths in 1928.

Rome, May 31 (U. P.).—The trial of six Communists charged with plotting terroristic acts at Milan, particularly an attack on the king, will begin Friday before the special tribunal for defense of the realm.

The defendants will face a charge of responsibility for the explosion of a bomb at Giulio Cesare Square April 12, 1928, at the moment the king passed by. Twenty spectators were killed.

The Communists are Augusto Ludovichetti, Ettore Vacchieri, Giuseppe Sardi, Oreste Bruneri, Aximo Boccalari and Giovanni Testa.

KILLING OF OFFICER REENACTED BY BOY

False Glamor of Gangdom Is Blamed for Shooting in Chicago.

Chicago, May 31 (A.P.).—A school boy of 15, his adolescent mind crammed with spurious lore about hoodlum gangsters and their exploits, reenacted today the slaying of Patrolman Edward Smith.

Verner Corry, who had just got his first pair of long pants, led officials into the swimming pool room of John Marshall High School. His face expressionless, he stood at the edge of the pool and pointed to bloodstains, still visible.

"While the policeman was about 15 feet away," he said, "I picked up the gun from my clothes on the bench here and said 'Stick 'em up!'" He jerked a hand toward his hip pocket in demonstration.

"He came up closer. Then he stepped behind a pole and I saw him move his hand toward his own gun.

"I walked toward the pillar and fired two shots. He fired once and hit the second finger of my right hand. Then we all picked up our clothes and ran."

Companions Also Face Death.

His brother, Earl, 11, and Schuyler Pearson, 13, nodded affirmatively. They were with him when he broke into the building to go swimming. All face death in the electric chair. They have been told so, officers said, but they remain unemotional.

"It's this false worship of sneak thieves and criminals that's making them act this way," said Sergt. Garrett Fleming. "They think it's smart. Why, when young Corry confessed to me yesterday, he kept repeating phrases about 'I beat him to the draw,' and such. He is full of the popular misconceptions about the romance supposed to surround gangsters."

The boy told of breaking into the school on three previous occasions to swim or loot. He said he stole the revolver from a desk in the gymnasium, and practiced with it during previous raids.

"My heavens, boy!" Fleming broke in, "aren't you even sorry for the widow and children of the officer you killed?"

"Well," said Verner after a moment, "I guess I am sorry for her—yes, I'm sorry I done it."

Indictments to Be Asked.

The State's attorney's aids said indictments would be asked tomorrow. The boys are old enough to be surrendered from the juvenile court jurisdiction to face first-degree murder charges.

Police at first had desired to reenact the slaying tomorrow. But school authorities said:

"Impossible! Why school would be going on."

"What of it?" officers replied. "What could be a better object lesson?"

However, it finally was decided to carry out the drama today.

WAR DEAD HONORED IN CHARLOTTESVILLE

Memorial Services Held and Graves Are Decorated; Browning Speaks.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 31.—Judge George L. Browning, of Orange, delivered the address at the Memorial Day exercises in Madison Hall this afternoon, when patriotic, civic and military organizations united in paying tribute to the memory of hundreds of soldiers from all the Southern States whose bodies rest in University Cemetery.

A colorful parade preceded the ceremonies. The procession, which formed at the armory, consisted of the Monticello Guard, in Continental uniform, the American Legion Post, Spanish-American War Veterans, Boy Scouts, Confederate veterans and escorts, sons and daughters of Confederate veterans, mayor and city officials and civic organizations. Capt. Edward V. Walker, of the Albemarle Bar, was the marshal, and at the head of the parade was the Municipal Band, which leaves tomorrow for Montgomery, Ala., to attend the annual reunion of Confederate veterans.

The program began at 4:30 o'clock, with Gen. C. B. Linney, commander of the John Bowie Strange Camp, C. V., presiding. The Municipal Band led the assemblage in singing hymns sung by soldiers of the War Between the States, and prayer was offered by the Rev. Dwight Moody Chalmers, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

Judge Browning, the speaker, was introduced by Albert S. Bolling, of the Albemarle Bar, State commander Sons of Confederate Veterans, who told his hearers that we, too, here in Virginia, have a tomb of the Unknown Soldiers; that among the names on the monument to the Confederate dead, in the University Cemetery, are those from every Southern State. Among the latter, he said, there is a name, graven into the granite shaft, with other Louisiana troops, "Jim ——, of Biloxi," calling to mind the matchless poem by the late James Lindsay Gordon.

A cross of service was presented by Homer Richey to Capt. Llewellyn Wood, World War veteran, and son of a Confederate veteran.

The assemblage adjourned to the cemetery, where the Daughters of the Confederacy scattered flowers upon the graves of the soldiers—Georgia Volunteers, rebels from the Carolinas, Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana and other States.

Thieves' Quarrel Discloses Cache

Farmer Leads Policeman to Rayon Thread Loot Near Fredericksburg.

Special to The Washington Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., May 31.—Thieves hiding their loot in the Stafford County woods 12 miles from here last night became so voluble they awakened George English, a farmer, who this morning led a State officer to a cache of rayon thread which textile experts here valued at $1,000.

The hiding place was only a short distance from the Richmond-Washington highway. The thieves hauled the thread to the spot in a truck. A quarrel during the unloading awakened English, who did not venture outdoors, however, until morning, when he notified Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Sneed.

Information of the discovery was sent to rayon mills in Maryland, Richmond, Hopewell and Waynesboro in an effort to determine from which the thread was stolen.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Fire of unknown origin yesterday afternoon swept the third floor of 518 King street, occupied as an apartment by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dove and their small child, but the fire was confined to that floor and the attic above. No estimate of the loss could be given.

The second floor of the building, occupied as offices by Richard L. Ruffner, lawyer, owner of the building, and David Bayless, contractor, was flooded with water, but firemen covered furniture with tarpauline, so the damage was slight.

The first floor, occupied by Thom McAn as a shoe store, was flooded, and the stock damaged to an undetermined extent. The first alarm was given at 3:55 o'clock and later a second alarm was turned in. Engine Companies 1 and 4 responded and the fire was extinguished after an hour and a half.

Today is the last call for city taxes before a penalty is added, and for the accommodation of those unable to call during the day the office of City Collector W. R. Purvis Taylor will be held open from 7:30 to 9 o'clock tonight. The amount to be collected for the city is $400,000, and to date approximately $100,000 has been paid. The number paying before the penalty is effective is lower this year than the average.

Commissioner of Revenue Charles H. Callahan states that only about 4,000 out of a possible 6,000 persons in the city to file income tax returns have made such returns, and after 5 o'clock this afternoon, the closing hour for his office, a penalty of 5 per cent will be added on the bills of all who have not paid.

MANY PRIZES GIVEN FOR 4-H CLUB WORK

Montgomery's 1,000 Members May Compete for Cash or Scholarships.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4203.

Opportunity is knocking at the door of the Montgomery County boys who belong to the county 4-H Club, according to Albert A. Ady, assistant county agricultural agent in charge of 4-H Clubs. Awards of all sorts await the county boy who is up and doing and not afraid to work with his live stock.

Each year the 4-H Club program is given additional recognition as a permanent educational movement among rural boys and girls, according to Mr. Ady. One of the evidences of this increased recognition is the growing list of scholarships, educational trips, medals and other prizes to encourage 4-H Club members and in recognition of their achievements. Montgomery County has never failed to have a State winner in Club year.

Following is a list of awards offered this year by individuals and organizations in contests supervised by the National Committee on Boys' and Girls' Club work.

100 Scholarships Offered.

One hundred scholarships are offered in the International Harvester Company 4-H Agricultural College Scholarship contest. Each scholarship is valued at $500. They are divided as follows: 10 to club members of the eastern agricultural extension division; 35 to States in the southern division; 40 to the central States division, and 15 to States in the western extension division.

Two agricultural college scholarships of $400 and $100 each are offered by the Parker Pen Co., Janesville, Wis., national and reserve national winner, respectively, in the Farm Record Keeping Project contest.

Club members enrolled in meat animal projects are eligible to compete for the $300, $200 and $100 agricultural college scholarships to be awarded by Thomas E. Wilson in the national meat animal live stock project contest. The three highest scoring club members exhibiting in the International Live Stock Exposition are offered scholarships of $300 each by Mr. Wilson.

Trips to Chicago Listed.

The 4-H Club boy and girl in each of the four extension divisions of the United States whose records are the most outstanding of contestants in the National 4-H Club achievement contest, will receive educational trips to the tenth national 4-H Congress in Chicago. These eight trips are offered by Mr. Wilson, the Industrial Club of Chicago and the national committee.

The boy and girl club members winning highest honors in the national 4-H Club leadership contest will receive a free trip to the National 4-H Club Congress as the guest of H. A. Moses, of Mottineague, Mass.

Gold achievement medals will be presented to the boy and girl club members scoring highest in the national health contest at the national congress. Cash prizes are offered by the national committee. Cash prizes are offered by the International Live Stock Exposition on all home economics, live stock and corn exhibits. A beautiful silver trophy, gift of Sir Thomas Lipton, will be awarded each of the boy and girl club members winning highest honors in the national 4-H Club achievement contest. A $15 Parker Duofold pen and pencil will be awarded by the Parker Pen Co. to the boy or girl member having made the best record in each State in the farm record keeping contest, with a $5 pen to each State reserve honor winner.

A Gold Watch for Each State.

A gold-filled honor medal will be awarded the highest scoring 4-H Club member in each county of the United States who is enrolled in and carrying one or more meat animal projects by Thomas E. Wilson. Each State winner in this contest will receive a 19-jewel gold watch of standard make, valued at $50.

In addition to the national prizes offered, the following local county prizes also are given to entrants in the Rockville Fair:

A special Jersey premium of $2 will be given by the American Jersey Cattle Club to each member having a calf registered in his or her name and whose record book is submitted to the superintendent on entry to the fair, provided that the awards do not exceed $34. In order to foster introduction and exhibition of high class Holstein-Friesian cattle in the county through 4-H Club endeavor, the Holstein-Friesian Association of Montgomery County will give $50 to be divided equally among 4-H Club members exhibiting Holstein animals at the fair.

County Prizes Are Cash.

Sycamore Farms of Rockville offers $50 to be divided equally among members who exhibit Guernsey animals at the fair. The Pleasant Hills Farm will award a pure-bred Holstein-Friesian heifer calf to the member who excels in club work throughout the year. A bull calf of the same breed will be given by James D. King, of Germantown, to be awarded at a drawing by members participating in the fair.

Each year the Maryland Stockman's Association offers $25 in each county for the heaviest litter of pigs in that respective county entered in the contest at 150 days of age. The pigs must be of the same litter, entered when not more than one month old and fed through a period of 150 days from time of birth and records kept on same, the highest weight and not cost of production to govern the winner.

There are approximately $50 in awards contributed by the banks of Montgomery County to be given to various outstanding 4-H agricultural boys and girls for such achievements as showing a calf or pig in the best manner at the fair, or giving the best attention to and keeping the calf in best condition at the fair, and the best display of poultry.

Any of the 1,000 4-H Club members of Montgomery County can secure information about the contests from Mr. Ady at the Farm Bureau office in Rockville.

ONE MAYOR REFUSES WINES OF BURGUNDY

Touring American Party Has Warm Reception in City of Dijon.

Dijon, France, May 31 (A.P.).—The touring American mayors were given a hearty welcome by a crowd of 12,000 persons when they arrived in this ancient capital of Burgundy this afternoon.

The visiting executives and their wives were loudly cheered in a spontaneous demonstration of the holiday throng, many of whom recalled the frequent passage of American troops through the city on their way toward the front in 1918.

In the stately old City Hall, which once was the palace of the Dukes of Burgundy, Mayor Gaston Gerard and other municipal officials welcomed the Americans.

M. Gerard, who also is undersecretary of state for public works and tourism, boasted of the wine grapes of his section, which are used in making Burgundy wines.

Los Angeles Mayor Abstains.

Pointing to the wine goblets on the refreshment table, he said: "There are other things to drink on this table, but I hope they will not be used."

Mayor John C. Porter, of Los Angeles, was the only executive who was deaf to this plea. He declined the offered beverage and contented himself with a glass of ice water. Mrs. Porter emptied her golden goblet, but it contained only orangeade.

"On that table there are a lot of good wines, which we hope soon to be able to sell to you as in the old days," Mayor Gerard had said in his speech of welcome.

"Remember that we are in a wine-growing country, whose fermented product is the least harmful in the world for the human system.

"As you go around here just look at our Burgundy peasants, who have drunk wine all their lives, and see how healthy, hearty and long-lived they are."

Mayor George L. Baker of Portland, Oreg., who served as official spokesman, thanked the Dijon officials heartily and the band then played "The Star-Spangled Banner," "The Marseillaise" and "The Joyous Children of Burgundy."

Tomorrow the mayors will leave by train for Nancy.

Mayor James L. Key of Atlanta, who was forced to take a rest by doctor's orders, rejoined his colleagues today, receiving a warm welcome.

Russia's Homeless Waifs No Longer Menace Society

Soviet Declares Problem of 750,000 Wild Youth After Revolution Has Been Reduced by Government Care to Less Than 4,500.

Moscow, May 31 (A.P.).—Russia's wild youth, known as "Besprizorni," or homeless waifs, is being tamed and educated and taught to work.

A government statement says there now are fewer than 4,500 of these waifs in Soviet Russia and by the end of this year authorities expect they will have been entirely eradicated.

The government is proud of its accomplishment with these children in view of the fact that after the famine of 1921 the homeless waifs throughout the Soviet Union numbered approximately 750,000.

In rags and tatters and driven by hunger they roamed aimlessly through the streets and byways becoming pickpockets, thieves, bandits and general public menaces.

Traveling in gangs, they robbed and even killed strangers on lonely roads. Foreigners with watches, fountain pens and rings as well as money were often their victims.

Most of these homeless waifs were an aftermath of the revolution. Many families were so poverty stricken they were unable to feed their children.

The government quickly recognized the danger and the all-Russian central executive committee appointed a commission with special instructions to corral the wild youth and install them in homes hurriedly erected.

Aided by the "OGPU," political police, the regular police seized hundreds of thousands of them on the streets and placed them in homes or labor communes, where they were strictly disciplined, given a rudimentary education and taught trades.

On reaching the age of 15 or 16 they were sent to factories, apprentice schools or to various other enterprises. However, the most effective way of combating the problem was through the state collective farms.

In efforts to overcome the homelessness, the government spent some 50,000,000 rubles (about $25,000,000) during 1930.

In the matter of crime, the Soviets go on the theory of correction rather than punishment, and special efforts are made to redeem wayward youths between the ages of 16 and 20.

Numerous reform schools have been started, the most famous being the prison colony for youths operated by the "OGPU" near Moscow. This is unique in that the youthful inmates run the place themselves under the "honor system." There are no guards, cells or prison walls.

In this school the youths learn farming trades and when they become 21 years old they are required to obtain jobs.

PENNSYLVANIA LINE WINS SAFETY HONOR

Gold Medal Is Awarded for Efforts in Combating Rail Dangers.

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—The Pennsylvania Railroad, Central region, is awarded the Gold Medal of the American Museum of Safety for 1930 for achieving the greatest accomplishment during the year in the field of safety effort, it was announced today By Arthur Williams, president.

The medal goes to railroads of the "first group," which includes the 41 largest railroads of the country, each reporting 10,000,000 or more locomotive miles. The New York Central Railroad receives honorable mention in this class.

The awards are the E. H. Harriman Memorial Medals, donated by Mrs. Mary H. Harriman in memory of the late Edward H. Harriman.

In the first group the committee on awards felt special mention should be made of the safety achievements of the Long Island Railroad. Its safety rating improved over 1919 by 34.6 per cent, holding second place.

The second group award, a silver medal, for railroad companies each reporting between 1,000,000 and 10,000,000 locomotive miles, goes to the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railroad Co., which, one of 67 in the class, stood seventeenth in 1928. The second place honorable mention is awarded to the Gulf, Mobile & Northern Railroad.

First place in the third group of 44 railroads having less than 1,000,000 locomotive miles yearly is won by the Missouri, Illinois Railroad, which receives a bronze medal. The New Orleans and Northern receives honorable mention.

The certificate of merit, top award for the fourth group, which includes all switching and terminal railroads, is to the Lake Terminal Railroad Co., a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation.

This road has a perfect record of safety for the year, not reporting a single accident.

The president of the safety museum said the 1930 safety improvement represents a saving of 1,015 lives and 27,568 personal injuries.

VIRGINIAN AWARDED MEDAL FOR BRAVERY

Telephone Worker Receives Vail Presentation for Heroism in Fire.

Quick action in moving his equipment and restoring service when the town in which he was working was threatened by fire won for Ivan F. Vannoy, Chesapeake & Potomac repairman, of Winchester, Va., the Theodore N. Vail Medal and $250 in cash, it was announced yesterday. Two others were given similar awards, one for aiding in the capture of a band of robbers and the other for saving the life of a fellow workman.

When flames were sweeping down on the Town of Gore, in the Shenandoah Valley, on October 4, 1930, Mr. Vannoy helped maintain service in the exchange until he saw the office in which it was located would be destroyed.

Then, in the face of almost insurmountable difficulty, he dismantled and saved the equipment and arranged for prompt restoration of telephone service. As a result of his work both local and long distance service was reestablished the following morning from new headquarters.

Miss Hazel H. Haase, of Clinton, Ind., relayed messages of the flight of heavily armed bank bandits from town to town and from farm to farm, and gave information which finally drew a cordon about the desperadoes. All were either killed or captured through her activities.

Leonard J. Strang, of Cleveland, a window washer, saved the life of another window washer when the man's safety belt partly broke away. Strang attached his own belt to the endangered man and pulled him to safety.

The medals are provided by the Vail Memorial Fund, established in memory of the Theodore N. Vail, late president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

BUREAUS HANDLING VETERANS' AFFAIRS ARE BEING REVAMPED

President to consolidate and coordinate governmental activities affecting war veterans.

Until this law became effective, the Veterans' Bureau, created to handle the affairs of World War veterans; the Pension Bureau, which was handling the affairs of all veterans aside from those of the World War, and what is now known as the Bureau of National home, which operates eleven homes for veterans—until the law was enacted, these were functioning separately.

Pursuant to the act of July 3, 1930, President Hoover, eighten days later, signed an executive order establishing the Veterans' Administration and consolidating therein the Veterans' Bureau, the Pension Bureau and the Bureau of National Homes.

Bureaus Will Lose Identity.

Thus far, however, the Veterans' Bureau has continued under the guidance of a director and the Pension Bureau has been in charge of an acting commissioner. The Bureau of National Homes also has retained its identity. Now all these are to be blended and their functions placed under four major offices.

In his statement, Administrator Hines said:

"The organization which was today announced and which will be placed in effect as of July 1, 1931, contemplates the organization of the administration of all laws pertaining to veterans on a functional basis, and by having related functions under a single jurisdiction assures maximum service with due regard to efficiency and economy of operation.

"By orders being released the general direction and supervision of the activities of the veterans' administration is placed in four major offices: The office of the administrator, the office of assistant administrator in charge of medical and domiciliary care, construction and supplies, the office of assistant administrator in charge of pensions and compensation, and the office of assistant administrator in charge of finance and insurance. It is also provided that there will be a special counsel on insurance claims responsible directly to the administrator for the defense of suits under Section 19 of the World War veterans' act as amended.

"In the office of the administrator there will be the executive assistant to the administrator, who will be responsible to the administrator for the proper performance of functions having to do with the budget, personnel, classification, mails and records, office supplies, equipment, services and space, and contact with beneficiaries and the press; and the solicitor of the veterans' administration, who will be responsible to the administrator on matters having to do with questions of law, guardianship, rules and regulations, legislation, appeals to the administrator and investigations.

"Under the general jurisdiction of the assistant administrator in charge of medical and domiciliary care, construction and supplies, there are established four services: The medical and hospital service, national homes service, the construction service and the service of subsistance of medical supplies.

"Under the jurisdiction of the assistant administrator, in charge of pensions and compensation, there are established the pension service and the compensation service.

Finance-Insurance Unit Planned.

"Under the jurisdiction of the assistant administrator in charge of finance and insurance there are established the finance service and the insurance service.

"It is provided that regional offices, homes, hospitals and other field stations of the administration shall have such functions as have heretofore been provided by duly established regulations not inconsistent with the present order, and officials in charge of field stations shall be responsible to the administrator for the proper discharge of the functions of their stations through the official in charge of the office in central office having jurisdiction over such functions."

In commenting upon field offices, the administrator of veterans' affairs stated that their activities would no longer be limited to rendering aid to the World War veterans, but rather it would be the purpose to have all field stations in a position to at least initiate action on behalf of the veteran of any war or any other beneficiary of the veterans' administration who might contact the station for one purpose or another. Under this policy it would be possible for all veterans eligible to benefit to secure such service as he may require by establishing contact with the facility of the veterans' administration serving the district in which the veteran resides.

TRADE WILL ENTER SUMMER ON UPTURN

Recession in May Relieved by Firmness of Outlook for Some Lines.

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—Business now faces the summer recession of activity. If it faces June and July with scant courage, it is because the spring season has failed to bring as vigorous a revival as the more hopeful had expected.

None the less, several of the more commonly accepted statistical indices of general business activity show that in view of the low level of trade at the beginning of the year, the expansion experienced has been larger than can be attributed wholly to the stimulus of changing seasons.

Recession of basic activity has been notable during May, particularly in the steel industry, but from as much of the record as is now available for the month, it is doubtful if May has shown as much slackening as it normally does. Automobile manufacturing is believed to have approximated April's output, and textile and shoe manufacturing have been well maintained.

Some Increase in Building.

Encouraging is the partial checking of the slump in building activity, so apparent in April. Figures on building contracts let show that the third week of May experienced some expansion over the first two weeks. The total for the first three weeks indicates a decline from April of 6 7-10 per cent, only moderately larger than the usual decline from April to May.

Retail trade during the past week was stimulated by preparations for the Memorial Day week-end, and weather conducive to the movement of seasonable merchandise. Most reports on the movement of goods at retail indicate a recession in the dollar volume substantially less than the shrinkage of prices during the past twelve months, so that a large actual volume of goods appears to be moving in many lines. Profit margins, however, remain distressingly narrow.

Steel mill activity has continued its almost steady shrinkage from the spring peak reached in late March. The weekly estimates show considerable disagreement as the extent of the shrinkage during the past week, but Iron Age reckons output at 44 per cent of capacity, off only 1 point from the previous week.

Loadings Show Increase.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended May 16, showed a negligible increase, although a fair gain in normal for that period. The latest report on electric power production made a less favorable comparison with a year ago than the previous week.

Some of the same business prophets who a year ago depicted the autumn prospects in glowing colors, now speak with restrained and qualified optimism of the outlook for the coming fall. If they hit wide of the mark a year ago, the natural processes of economic history favor them this time. A year of severe depression has past, weak spots have been eliminated and in many places, economic foundations have been strengthened. Prices of many commodities have fallen to levels where excesive production is being automatically halted. What voluntary cooperation has failed to accomplish, the laws of economics appear to be forcing.

Although it is now apparent the depression had by no means run its course by last autumn, and that a year ago's predictions of pronounced autumn improvement in trade were premature, it is also apparent that fortuitous developments intervened to rob the autumn seasonal impulse of its full strength.

The devastating drought over much of the country a year ago was a paralyzing influence.

Current crop prospects are generally favorable, and many observers feel that a season of reasonably and uniformly good crops will do considerable toward restoring normal conditions. The fact that acreage has not been restricted as much as had been hoped, may prevent any marked improvement in prices, but a crop that must be marketed cheaply is presumably better than bearing the expense of planting, then having the crop totally destroyed by extremes of weather, so far as the individual farmer is concerned.

Mayan Temple Found In Pyramid in Mexico

Merida, Yucatan, Mexico, May 31 (A.P.).—Discovery of a Mayan temple sealed within the ancient "Castillo" pyramid at Chichen Itza, near here, was announced today by Eduardo Martinez Canton, a government archeologist. The temple was reached through a tunnel bored from the surface of the pyramid, which forms part of the ruins of what once was a great Mayan city.

The archeologist and his party found a huge room within the pyramid. In the center was a large stone platform 3 feet high, which they believe served as an altar for the Mayan priests. Except for a gold ring and several stone buttons, the temple contained nothing of much importance.

fiscal year. The Treasury has said that it expected that the total expenditure of the Government by June 30 would reach $4,435,000,000 and indications are that the total income will mount but little above $3,000,000,000. This would leave a deficit of around $1,400,000,000.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—New State and municipal financing scheduled for this week totals $51,171,316, compared with $24,522,913 last week and a weekly average of $39,392,405 for the year to date, the Bond Buyer reports. Los Angeles County, Calif., school districts will consider bids Monday for a block of $2,000,000 bonds and the State of Wyoming will receive bids Tuesday for $2,300,000 in bonds. The City of Albany, N. Y., has called for bids on Wednesday for $2,330,000 water and local improvement and equipment bonds.

Employment in the silk industry declined 2.5 per cent in April from the previous month and 10.6 per cent from the April, 1930, figure, the Silk Association of America reports. Broad loom employment declined seventenths of 1 per cent in April from March, and narrow loom employment 3.7 per cent. The decline in spinning spindle employment was 4.1 per cent.

Offering of a new issue of $20,000,000 Federal intermediate credit bank debentures is announced by Charles R. Dunn, fiscal agent. Issued for refunding purposes, the debentures dated June 15, 1931, mature in three, six, eleven and twelve months.

A bondholders' protective committee has been formed as a result of the May 1 interest default on the ten-year 6 per cent gold bonds of Federal Sugar Refining Co. Deposit of the securities with Chase National Bank of New York is requested by the committee.

CUT FAILS TO SPUR FUND WITHDRAWAL

Purpose of Reductions in Interest Rates Was to Strengthen Bonds.

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—The monthly review of the New York Federal Reserve Bank says that although the reduction of money rates in May to almost unprecedented levels was accompanied by strengthening of high grade bonds and principal European exchanges, it failed to influence withdrawal of funds from New York to other part of the country.

As interpreted in banking circles generally, one of the chief purposes of the reserve bank's easy money policy has been to stimulate the bond market and thereby help the recovery of business by making it possible for corporations to obtain funds to carry out expansion and improvement programs.

Call Market Gains Funds.

The strengthening of exchanges, the review says, apparently reflected the withdrawal of foreign funds from this market, or an increase in the amount of domestic funds employed abroad. Either is regarded as a natural sequence to the reduced earning power of the dollar in the short term market here compared with higher interest rates abroad.

The action of the New York clearing house in reducing interest rates paid on deposits, a movement which has spread throughout the country, had a tendency to turn more funds into the call money market. That was the only noticeable effect of the reduction, the review says, pointing out as a result of the move out of town banks and other depositors realized 1 per cent on their funds, as contrasted to ½ per cent if left in New York banks.

During the two weeks ended May 27 the shifting was particularly noticeable. Balances of out-of-town banks have dropped $108,000,000, while their loans to brokers increased $48,000,000.

Brokers' Loans Are Retired.

Similarly, although total broker loans placed by reporting New York City member banks declined $97,000,000 during this period, the loans placed by these banks with customers other than out-of-town banks increased $24,000,000. The result was that $169,000,000 of the New York banks' own brokers' loans was retired.

During the early months of the year reserve banks' bill holdings declined with unusual rapidity, the review says, and the volume in February and March was much smaller than in previous years. This was because commercial banks used funds received through retirement of currency from circulation and through gold imports to retire Federal reserve credit either directly or indirectly. New acceptances were retained by banks so that few went to the Federal except in occasional periods of slightly firmer money market conditions. This, with the reduction occasioned by maturities, has rapidly reduced the banks' acceptance holdings.

2 Thefts Reported In Prince Georges

Riverdale Garage, Hardware Store in Hyattsville Are Robbed.

Two robberies, one in Riverdale and one in Hyattsville, and another attempted housebreaking in Hyattsville, were reported to Prince Georges County police yesterday morning.

The Riverdale garage was robbed of $50, the Prince Georges Hardware Co., in Hyattsville of merchandise and money, while glass was broken in Dudrow's drug store in Hyattsville, although the place was not entered.

Watches and knives were taken from the hardware store, as well as a small quantity of change. Police said the thieves apparently were frightened away before they had time to loot the drug store.

Prince Georges Police Arrest Eight in Raid

Four women and four men were arrested early yesterday when Prince Georges County police raided the Colonial Tea House, in Bladensburg, holding the proprietress on charges of maintaining a disorderly house.

The proprietress, who said she was Mrs. Della Christopher, taken before Judge John Fainter in Hyattsville, was released on bond of $500. The others gave their names as Mary O'Brien, a waitress at the place; Doris Devoe, of Fourteenth street near Euclid street northwest; Catherine Miller, of Nineteenth street northwest near Florida avenue; Wade Arnold, of Connecticut avenue northwest near Woodley road; Michael Pierce, of Twelfth street southeast near D street; Thomas Gaddi, of Oil City, Pa., and Joseph Raymond, of Culpeper, Va. They were released on $10 collateral on charges of disorderly conduct.

WEEK'S BONDS FIND NEW LOW LEVELS

Many Groups Hit in Waves of Selling; Gilt-Edge Issues Hold Firm.

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—The bond market went through a series of gyrations last week which reached their conclusion in a number of new low prices in various groups in the last two days of that period.

The preference of investors for high-grade issues continued, and some of this group even gained moderately. The late losses in the more speculative bonds no doubt were caused to some extent by the weakness in stocks on Friday, and possibly the week-end holiday induced some selling by timid holders.

A pungent comment on present bond market conditions is printed in the current review of business of the National City Bank. It says:

"Unquestionably there has been a good deal of hysteria in connection with the bond market, and there is evidence that a good many investors are sacrificing their securities needlessly, with results which are unfortunate not only to bondholders themselves, but to business, which is dependent upon the bond market as an aid to recovery.

Needless Selling Deplored.

"Although it is true that the severity of the world depression has increased the number of bonds which have been obliged to default or about which some question may be raised, this is no justification for indiscriminate liquidation. While panicky investors are throwing their holdings overboard, other and more astute buyers are taking the opportunity to pick up many sound issues at what in the long run will undoubtedly prove to be bargain prices."

The effect of the holiday was apparent also in the new securities offered. The bulk of the issues publicly offered were floated on the first four days of the week.

The aggregate of such flotations was $108,279,000 compared with $93,235,000 for the previous week. The former is the largest weekly total since the week of April 10 when $296,275,000 in securities were offered, including a $100,000,000 issue for the Pennsylvania Power & Light Co., $30,000,000 debentures for the Fox Film Corporation and $30,000,000 in bonds of New York State.

Gas Bonds Sale.

Further evidence of the preference for high grade bonds appeared on Wednesday when the $60,000,000 issue of the Consolidated Gas Co. of New York was sold at wholesale within a few minutes after the subscription books were opened. Other offerings were of more moderate size, except the $80,000,000 of United States Treasury bills which were sold on Thursday and which are not included in the weekly total. The big event of the week now starting probably will be the financing by the United States Treasury.

Since the Federal Reserve Bank of New York reduced its rediscount rate on May 8 to the lowest level on record at 1½ per cent, which was followed by reductions in other Federal Reserve Banks, the bond market has experienced further selective buying, concentrated in the high grade issues.

One of the principal purposes of the lower rediscount rated in New York was to stimulate the bond market by making interest rates so low as to discourage people from keeping idle funds on deposit in banks and to divert them to the bond market. Such an effect has not been accomplished yet at least so far as the great bulk of good, but not high grade, bonds are concerned.

However, economic cycles often take time to get started and it may well be that the present condition is no exception to that rule.

Movie Firm Finds Business Growing

Fox Film Report Shows Dividend Net Total $9,469,000.

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—Delayed by differences over auditing policies, the 1930 annual report of the $200,000,000 Fox Film Corporation, made public today, shows its net income available for dividends amounted to $9,469,000.

This was equal to $3.64 a share on 2,525,660 shares of A and B stock outstanding at the close of the year. The 1929 earnings were equal to $10.28 a share on a much smaller capitalization. During 1930 1,600,000 new shares were issued. These figures are based on the report made by the regular auditors of the company.

The company had total income for the year ended December 27 of $102,004,009, compared to $83,184,112 in the preceding year.

Commenting on the record in 1930 President Harley Clarke says reports appear to indicate that the present depression has affected more seriously the demand for food and clothing than it has the demand for amusement, recreation and instruction.

Tobacco Business Shows Gain.

New York, May 31 (A. P.).—Coincident with the declaration of the 75th consecutive common stock dividend by Liggett and Myers, it was learned today that 1931 business thus far has shown an increase over the previous year. Earnings are understood in financial circles about equal to those of 1930.

ROAD CONSTRUCTION PUSHED IN VRIGINIA

Traffic Is Progressing Over Regular Routes With Little Inconvenience.

Richmond, Va., May 30 (A.P.).—The Virginia Department of Highways today reported the general condition of all State highways is good, with much construction and oiling in progress. In nearly all places where work was going on traffic was being carried over the regular road with little or no inconvenience.

Widening construction was underway just north of Richmond on United States Route 1. Traffic was using the regular highway but was cautioned to drive slowly where barricades were erected to keep cars off the new concrete and shoulder work. Between Richmond and Petersburg widening work was also going on and traffic was cautioned to drive carefully. From Petersburg to the North Carolina line was clear of construction and in good condition.

The report said that no oiling was going on between Richmond and Danville, on the road through Amelia, Burkeville, Keysville and Halifax, but there were two sections that were a little rough and dusty.

Sections Being Widened.

On U. S. Route 11 through the Shenandoah Valley, ther were four sections of widening construction between Winchester and Staunton where traffic was going over the work or on the regular road beside the construction.

From Staunton to Natural Bridge, U. S. No. 11 was in good shape, but between Natural Bridge and Roanoke there was a section of reconstruction, where the road was torn up and rough for several miles.

Between Roanoke and Bristol Bridge construction was under way in three places, but work was on new location, except short sections where the new and old roads connect.

On U. S. route 15 oiling was under way between Culpeper and Orange and was to be continued for another week. This oiling could be avoided by following the hard-surfaced road through Madison Courthouse.

The construction and unimproved road between Standardsville and the top of the mountain, about 4 miles, on route 17, was in good condition. On the section between the top of the mountain and Harrisonburg, through Elkton, oiling was expected to be started about June 3.

Oiling Is Under Way.

U. S. route 17, the Tidewater Trail, was open and in fair to good condition, but oiling and resurfacing was under way between Saluda and Tappahannock.

The oiling on route 39 between Montpelier and Mineral on the Richmond-Charlottesville road has been completed. Traffic was advised to drive slowly over the section that has just been finished where there was loose gravel.

Route 41, the Broad Street road, between Richmond and Charlottesville, was in good condition all the way, except for dust.

On U. S. route 60, between Virginia Beach and Ocean View, construction was started near Lynnhaven Inlet and traffic was detoured over the Water Works road to Virginia Beach boulevard. From Newport News to Richmond route 60 was clear of construction and in good condition. Between Richmond and Farmville, resurfacing was under way between Richmond and Amelia, and oiling between Burgeville and Farmville.

On the Lee highway, U. S. route 211, between Washington and New Market, widening was under way near Falls Church and oiling from Buckland to Warrenton. Traffic was maintained over both sections of work except in the town of Falls Church, where there was a street detour of about a mile.

ANNAPOLIS SPEAKER LAUDS NAVY IDEALS

Chaplain Delivers Sermon to 441 to Be Graduated on Thursday.

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., May 31.—A typical "June week" throng, consisting of mothers, fathers, sisters, brothers, sweethearts and friends of the midshipmen, filled the Naval Academy chapel this morning and heard Commander Frank H. Lash, chaplain, deliver the baccalaureate sermon to the class of 441 to be graduated on Thursday.

"Finding your place" was the general theme of the chaplain's address, and he selected his text from Acts, iv:23: "And being let go they went to their own company."

"A career in the United States Navy is a curious blend of going and being sent," the Chaplain said. "There is much that is chosen for us and much that we choose. A series of parallel and yet diversified experiences welds us into a closely homogeneous group within which each finds ample opportunity for self-expression and the development of individual personality."

Chaplain Lash declared that academic days must never be considered as bondage, but rather regarded as a process by which greater liberty is attained.

Given Best of Navy.

The chaplain reminded the graduates that they had been given the best the Navy had to offer, realizing that its honor and traditions shall rest ultimately within their keeping.

"You are custodians of the very life blood of the service," he said, and "all that unselfish interest, long experience and cumulative wisdom can transmit has been passed on to you by those to whom the Nation has entrusted the responsibility of your training."

Chaplain Lash declared that the gradual and rapid embodiment of proud naval traditions and noble ideals which have by that alchemy which transforms men welded into the very body and spirit of the Navy, is of vaster value than the important professional and cultural lessons they have learned.

"No matter where any of you shall go, nor what you shall do, there is no other ideal save that of service which will give you genuine joy, lasting satisfaction and abounding success," he chaplain said. He urged the young men to inculcate individualism. It takes a strong individual to work with others in accomplishing a big task, he said, and in the Navy more truly than in civil life, such cooperation is vital. "Choose such a company as you can help and who can be helpful to you," he said.

Foundation of Faith.

In concluding Chaplain Lash said, "I am happy, in the presence of these fathers and mothers, who see you not as you appear to us, mature men ready to take your places in the fleet, but as the young lads who were reared in their homes, to state that the company of seafaring men is a brotherhood which has never been ashamed nor afraid to admit its dependence upon the faith of the Almighty God. Your lives should still be builded upon the solid foundation of faith which underlies every true American home and institution."

Tomorrow the midshipmen will inaugurate a three-day program of military drills ashore and afloat. Today many of the visitors availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect a modern fighting machine, the battleships Arkansas and Wyoming being at anchor in the "roads," prepared to take aboard two of the undergraduate classes for the summer practice cruise to northern European waters.

PATUXENT GIVES UP CAPITAL GIRL'S BODY

Almea Adkins, One of Four Drowning Victims, Fell Off Boat, Belief.

The body of Miss Almea Adkins, 23 years old, of 198 F street southeast, one of four persons drowned in waters near the Capital over the week-end, was recovered yesterday in the Patuxent River, where she was drowned Saturday afternoon.

Others who lost their lives while seeking relief from the heat were: Ethelburt Millburn, of the Shawmut apartments: Nineteenth street and Columbia road; George Foster, colored, of Second street, near B street northwest, and Robert Browning, of New Baltimore, Va.

Miss Adkins was drowned when she slipped from a boat in which she and Robert Moore, of Berwyn, Md., had rowed to a point near Broom Island in Calvert County. Sometime later Dewey Moore, brother of Robert, saw the boat drifting near shore.

Could Not Swim Well.

Robert Moore was swimming some distance away. He did not see the girl after he left the boat, he said. It is thought that she slipped from the boat and drowned. She was unable to swim well.

Miss Adkins, a clerk in the Bureau of Census, was the daughter of R. E. Adkins, Pennsylvania Railroad engineer. She had gone with friends to visit another friend, Sydney Asbury, at the island.

Robert Browning, 20 years old, perished in the waters of Occoquan Creek, near Occoquan, Va., despite valiant efforts of Miss Alice Wilson and his younger brother to hold him above water until a rescue boat could reach their side.

Ethelburt Millburn, 18 years old, was drowned in the Potomac River, near Sycamore Island, above Little Falls, Md., while swimming with five companions. His companions recovered the body after a half hour search.

Browning's Body Recovered.

Browning's body was recovered three hours after he disappeared. He is believed to have been caught in a treacherous current, while about 30 feet from shore. The Alexandria Fire Rescue Squad went 20 miles to the scene, only to learn that the body had not been recovered.

Those swimming with Millburn were John Shaw, of 423 Jefferson street northwest; William Ray, of 1947 Biltmore street northwest; Russell Shaw, of 1511 Twenty-second street northwest, and Irving Comstock, of 1858 California street northwest, and a Ronald Rogerson, whose address was not given to police.

George Foster, 13 years old, colored, was drowned while swimming off Riley Wharf, at the foot of Water street near O street southwest.

HORSEPLAY BLAMED IN STUDENT'S DEATH

Inquest Into Fatal Fall at Maryland University Will Not Be Ordered.

"Innocent horseplay" caused the death of Alfred Bernheim, 20-year-old student at the University of Maryland, according to authorities at the school. The accidental nature of the boy's fall from the fourth floor was verified by Deputy Sheriff Tom Garrison, who said that no inquest would be held.

The youth who lived at Edgewood, Md., was killed Saturday night when he slipped from the roof of the dormitory. As reconstructed by school officials and police, the boy, with his roommate, Richard Knight, and others, had been throwing water. He was locked out of his room by the others and was trying to gain a vantage point to throw water into the room when he slipped. A bucket was found near his body, and his stockinged feet were wet, leading to the belief that he slipped and fell.

The youth was brought to Emergency Hospital here, in an unconscious condition. He died shortly after being admitted to the institution. His body is still at the hospital, although his parents have been notified.

A freshman in the engineering school, he stood well in his studies. He was a member of the tennis team.

ECONOMY, NOT MORE TAXES.

Sentiment against higher taxes is easily aroused. No one wants to pay more into the public coffers than is absolutely necessary. But such sentiment is ineffective, since it does not abolish the necessity of making governmental budgets balance. The only effective way of relieving taxpayers of further burdens is to reduce the cost of government. In attacking higher taxes from this angle the United States Chamber of Commerce is on a solid footing.

The country may well contemplate the rising cost of government while other costs are steadily decreasing. It is estimated that Federal, State and municipal governments spent $13,500,000,000, nearly one-sixth of the national income, in 1930. Such expenditures are rising at the rate of approximately $600,000,000 per year.

Much of this increase may be traced to the stimulation of public improvements to relieve unemployment. In many instances expenditures were augmented recklessly in the belief that business would shortly return to normal and that revenue would not shrink. Officials now know that prosperity can not be created by public building programs which must be financed out of taxpayers' pockets. That the construction industry was stimulated can not be questioned, but it is doubtful whether that gain will not be entirely neutralized by the heavier drain upon the people for funds.

At any rate, the urgent need of the hour is retrenchment in public expenditures. Governmental units must reorient themselves to the changed economic conditions. This means that expenditures must be trimmed down. If a sincere effort were made, casting political considerations aside, most budgets could be drastically reduced without curtailing the services which governments render to the people. Business has reduced prices without impairing the quality of goods. Why can not government units make similar adjustments? In times of stress all organizations are forced to make up in efficiency what they lack in revenue.

The fact that private enterprise must live on what revenue it can get forces it to watch the outgo. But governmental units have a habit of clapping higher taxes upon the people whenever revenue fails to equal expenditures. New sources of easy revenue blight the hopes of efficiency and retrenchment.

Herein lies the weakness of the argument that more people should be required to pay taxes so that they would make fewer demands upon the Treasury. The people who pay the taxes do not control expenditures. If they did, a shortage of revenue would more frequently result in new efficiencies instead of higher taxes.

There has never been a greater need for curtailment of public expenditures. With economic conditions as they are the people can not afford to pay higher taxes. But all units of government can economize and spend less. Only those prophets who have fanciful panaceas for the restoration of prosperity are demanding new forms of taxation to finance their dreams. Thoughtful, conservative citizens everywhere will join with the Chamber of Commerce in demanding retrenchment by Congress, the State legislatures and city councils.

CONSERVING TIMBER.

One substantial contribution which the Government is making toward industrial stabilization is revealed in an announcement from the Forest Service. Temporary restrictions have been placed upon the sale of timber from the national forests as a means of relieving the serious oversupply which is confronting the lumber industry. So long as conditions remain as they are the Forest Service will sell no timber in large lots except where that is necessary to avoid further unemployment and unnecessary fire hazards in the forests.

Sales amounting to less than $500 will continue to be made, because these are mostly for local use. Sawmills that are dependent upon national forests and can not obtain a supply of raw material elsewhere will continue to be supplied. Domestic paper mills may also draw upon the national forests to supply the demand for newsprint and other pulpwood products in this country. Wind-thrown, fire-damaged and bug-infested timber may be used. Otherwise the national forests are to be reserved for future need, when the temporary oversupply shall have disappeared.

This policy is similar to that inaugurated in the Federal oil fields soon after President Hoover took office. The administration issued an order withholding all Government oil lands from exploitation while the overproduction of petroleum lasted. The policy was attacked in the courts by prospectors anxious to get rich in a hurry, but it has recently been sustained by the Supreme Court. That high tribunal concluded that the leasing act of Congress goes no further than to empower the Secretary of the Interior to execute leases which, in his judgment, would promote the public interest.

The wisdom of this policy can not be challenged. The chief interest of the public in either oil or timber lands is conservation for economical use rather than exploitation for immediate profit. By withdrawing its resources in times of overproduction the Government not only assists in the stabilization of the industries affected but reserves valuable raw materials for the greater needs of the future. If the States were as vigilant in protecting the resources under their control as the Federal Government is, their combined efforts would constitute an important step toward stabilization of several industries now struggling in chaos.

A GRATEFUL NATION.

Among many Memorial Day orations none paid more eloquent tribute to the men who died for their country than that delivered by Richard N. Elliott, Assistant Controller General and former member of Congress, who spoke at Hyattsville, Md. His address was not only a plea for the care of wounded and disabled soldiers and of unprotected dependents, but assurance as well that a Nation that has been so generous in its treatment of its soldiers in all wars since the foundation of the Republic, will continue to provide for its defenders.

Mr. Elliott's committee work in the House of Representatives placed him in intimate relation with all pension, bonus and hospital work for veterans. The figures he gives are interesting as well as authentic.

There has been disbursed by the Pension Bureau since 1790 for pensions to the soldiers of all wars, except the World War, the sum of $8,344,625,247. There are now on the pension rolls 255,652 soldiers, 198,318 widows and 507 nurses receiving pensions from war service previous to the World War and the disbursements made for pensions through the Pension Bureau for the fiscal year 1930 amount to $219,203,540. The Veterans' Bureau has expended a total of $5,589,358,342 for the relief of World War Veterans, their dependents and beneficiaries. Of this sum $925,599,616 has been disbursed from allotments taken from service men's pay, and insurance premiums, and the balance from the Treasury. The disbursement for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1930, amounted to $452,150,622. Since March 3, 1919, Congress has authorized the appropriation of the sum of $110,477,000 for new construction for veterans' hospitals; 33,880 veterans are now receiving treatment in Government hospitals; 6,832 are suffering from tubercular ailments, 16,410 from neuropsychiatric diseases, and 10,638 from general medical and surgical diseases and conditions.

The Veterans' Bureau is operating 53 hospitals for the treatment of these veterans, 11 national homes, and 42 hospitals provided for other branches of the Government. The Bureau also is utilizing 203 civil and State institutions for the treatment of veterans for whom no Government facilities are available. The veterans of all wars who are receiving compensation ranging from $8 to $200 per month now number 297,820. Compensation is also being paid to dependents of 94,191 veterans whose deaths resulted from service in the World War; 176,979 World War veterans are receiving compensation amounting to $21,000,000 for this fiscal year, while $1,344,035,217 has been paid to beneficiaries under term insurance policies. Adjusted service certificates have been issued under the bonus law to 3,775,565 veterans and dependents amounting to $3,596,394,527, upon which loans have been made in the sum of $966,000,000.

The annual expenditures for veterans' relief now exceed $700,000,000, but so long as these vast sums are distributed to those who are justly entitled to them a grateful people will accept the burden and discharge, in a measure, the Nation's obligations to its defenders and their widows and orphans.

MAINE'S NEW GOVERNMENT.

The State of Maine is installing a modernized organization of its government in accordance with legislation passed this year. Two new departments are destined to supersede 28 agencies whose functions are either obsolete or are to be taken over by the new departments. The divisions created by the present law are finance and health and welfare, while modifications are made in the departments of education and fisheries, and all existing agencies are made subject to the budgetary, purchasing and other financial provisions of the new act.

Gov. William Tudor Gardiner has issued an interesting explanation of the various changes contemplated by his State in methods of administration, and the efforts at consolidation of departments will be watched with interest by other States. The important department of finance is to be made up of three bureaus—accounts and control, purchases and taxation. Provision is made for an advisory committee on budget to be composed of three members of the Legislature.

The new law requires that all public moneys be paid directly into the treasury, and while the constitutional office of treasurer is retained and he is closely coordinated with the bureau of accounts and control, the bureau has very general powers. It will maintain central accounts for all departments and agencies, examine and audit all bills, contracts, pay rolls and claims, and prescribe any subsidiary accounts deemed necessary.

Provisions relating to central purchasing allow practical flexibility; a standardization committee of five is formed consisting of three department heads, the governor and the purchasing agent. The latter, in direct charge of purchase of supplies, must consult institutional heads in order that supplies may satisfy the majority as far as possible. In the department of health and welfare technical experts head the bureaus of health, social welfare and institutional service. An ex officio board of vocational training also is provided.

Commissioners of the general departments are to be named for three years, and on the various committees set up by the act representation of the minority party is provided for. Altogether it is evident that Maine has embarked upon a demonstration of State administration containing some advanced features that seem sound and practical.

THE GROWTH OF FLYING.

A world record for aviation was established when the First Air Division of the Army completed its two weeks' maneuver program in Washington without a fatality or a single accident of importance. That these hundreds of fliers could come together to combine in formation flying for the first time without a crash either in the air or in landing was a testimonial both to their separate unit training and the remarkable advance in the reliability of the machines.

The record is one that will do much to increase public confidence in air transport. The Army airmen have rendered a signal service to the industry as well as bringing honor to their service that will be recognized in every country as well as at home. With the notable advances made in both commercial and private flying as well as the extensions made in the air mail service, it is but natural that evidences of this development should be reflected in the aircraft industry.

The Census Bureau is now supplying accurate figures with regard to aircraft production. The totals for last year are not yet complete, but for 1929, 132 manufacturers of aircraft were reported, as compared with 70 for 1927, and the 1929 production totaled $71,152,924, as against $21,161,853 for 1927. The total for the latter year was made up as follows: Airplanes, 6,482, valued at $46,847,691; seaplanes and amphibians, 109, valued at $4,660,429; other complete aircraft (including balloons), $641,190; parachutes, 6,188, valued at $1,437,602; propellers, 14,964, valued at $2,090,834; airplane parts and engines made for sale as such, $10,094,847; repair and experimental work, $3,688,201; other parts, $1,692,130.

There were 14,710 wage earners employed in the aircraft industry in 1929 who were paid a total of $21,801,665. The figures indicate a remarkable growth in aircraft output, and such a record as that just established by the Army Air Corps will do much to stimulate interest and speed the development of the industry, which is essentially a part of the national defense.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 31.—During the first four days in June the Boys' Club Federation of America will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary in Washington. This national movement is sponsored by over forty of our most prominent business men. It includes about 250 clubs, which have doubled in number in ten years. They are located in 132 cities and have a membership of over 250,000 with an investment of over $20,000,000. The object of this organization is to provide opportunity through wholesome activity under trained supervision for normal development of underprivileged boys.

These clubs are purposely located in congested centers where, without them, the street would be the gathering place for boys. They are open to all boys at a nominal cost and provide such recreation facilities as gymnasium, shower bath, vocational training and libraries. By means of holy charity they carry light into otherwise darkened lives. Through their influence boys are taught that they can be active and courageous while being law-abiding, manly and straight. As a source of character building and preparation for citizenship their influence is beyond calculation. This is practical philanthropy.

THE NEOLOGISMS

From the Christian Science Monitor.

Capturing the neologism is one of the pursuits of the up-to-date lexicographer. Whenever a new edition of the dictionary is about to be published the neologism hunters become especially active and it is rarely that a full-grown specimen escapes at least observation once the hunters get on the trail.

Whenever a neologism shows symptoms of becoming cantankerous—and it was not long ago that this word was a naughty little neologism—it is speedily captured by the lexicographers and thrust between the covers of the new dictionary. As a matter of fact the neologisms of today are the perfectly good words of tomorrow. Just as soon as a neologism lands on the pages of any generally recognized dictionary its standing is settled. It is a neologism no longer.

It would be an extremely difficult if not impossible task to list the existing neologisms, although many etymologists occasionally undertake to round them up and press the most desirable of them into the regular service of the English language.

Neologisms may be called "homemade" words and their survival and ultimate entrance into the realm of "regular" words depend largely upon the breadth of their circulation and the degree of popularity which they attain with the masses. Subtract the one-time neologisms from the present-day dictionaries and the latter would show a greater shrinkage than a shoddy suit in a summer shower.

Neologisms which have appeared recently in general circulation include "beautician," "cinemagnate," "fictioneer" and "Hooverocrat." And then there is that rough and ready neologism the "racketeer," which is doing yeoman service and appears to be without a chance of escape from the lexicons of the future. Television may call for a whole crop of neologisms. Scores of them are always bidding for popular use but few survive.

The cavalcade of other days is having its modern interpretations in "motorcade" and "aerocade," a pair of well-groomed neologisms which appear to be making headway in their claims for recognition. The tendency to manufacture new words appears to be growing rather than diminishing. More expressive words than the dictionaries afford constantly are being sought. Hence such neologisms as the "bucketeer," which is intended to fittingly describe the dealer in questionable securities.

What the future will bring forth—who knows?

IGLOO.

Well I know you get to love 'em, for
I've wept for more than one.
Well I know you miss the welcome of a dog, when he is gone.
And I'm sorry for you, Admiral, and so are millions more
Now that Igloo has been taken to the land we can't explore.

Well I know what you've been thinking, for I've thought the self-same way,
To a dog's downright devotion there's no tribute we can pay.
But in foul or sunny weather while you had him this you knew Little Igloo was a comrade who was all in all for you.

Once last winter I was with you and
I saw him at your side,
And I caught him looking at you with a look of honest pride.
And I thought as you went your way with him following at your heels
It is something to be worthy of the love a dog reveals.

Oh, the ways of life are puzzling and
God's purposes run deep,
The joys we hold the dearest are the ones we can not keep.
Little Igloo's life is ended—and these lines I pen to show That what it means to lose a dog your friends and neighbors know.

Is It Right to Starve the Plow Horse While There Is No Plowing to Do?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

WHEN Bill Jones decides to manufacture soap or soup or sealing wax, he has need of two commodities called Capital and Labor.

The first he obtains by selling stock in his enterprise; the second by advertising for workmen.

When the stock is sold and the money thus obtained is used to erect a building and to buy machinery, Bill finds himself under obligation to pay for service.

Since both Capital and Labor are essential to his enterprise, and he is using both, he must divide the profits between them.

He pays wages to Labor and pays dividends to Capital.

But a singular change has occurred.

When Bill first hired the necessary Labor it consisted of workmen, and it consists of workmen still. But when he first hired the necessary Capital it consisted of money, and now it consists of a building and a collection of machinery.

The people who provided the Capital don't think about the change. They think only of the money they hired out to Bill, and they expect a fair return. They expect their money to earn wages so long as Bill has it.

It is a reasonable expectation, and Bill works hard and earns a profit and pays regular dividends.

But Bill realizes that hard times may come, when he can't make a profit, so he lays up part of the profit as a surplus.

And when hard times come and no profit is made Bill takes that surplus and pays it out as dividends—for Capital works all the time and must be paid all the time.

But the Capital, we said, had been changed into a building and machinery. That is true. And these things wear out. Will the Capital, then, be lost when the wearing-out is finished.

No, indeed. Bill isn't so foolish as to permit that. And the people who furnished the Capital wouldn't stand for it.

Bill sets aside a portion of the profits in the name of depreciation. Capital must be safeguarded.

But Labor also wears out.

And Labor must live during hard times.

If, then, Capital and Labor are equally essential to Bill's enterprise and deserving of equal consideration, can you explain why it is good business to provide a surplus to care for one when times are hard and not good business to provide a surplus to care for the other?

And can you explain why it is good business to lay up a sum to care for the depreciation of one, and not good business to lay up a sum to care for the depreciation of the other?

Why does one hired hand deserve better treatment than the other one?

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

No Commission Wanted.

Baltimore Sun.

If President Hoover is wise, he will disabuse his mind of any idea that the tax issues which have come into the forefront of public discussion as a result of the mounting Federal deficit would be clarified by the appointment of a commission or the calling of a conference of State and Federal tax officials. In an emergency in which taxation is involved it would be particularly futile and particularly at variance with the spirit of American institutions.

It would be futile because the best practical brains and the best operating experience the Nation has for dealing with tax problems are in the seasoned, inconspicuous experts of the Treasury Department and in the two houses of Congress. Any committee or conference of outside "experts" would have to go to those sources for information and guidance, and in the end such a body could do nothing more than make recommendations for Congress to consider. It would be better in the first instance to leave the study of the problem to the established official agencies which have always dealt with it in the past and which must in the end deal with it now.

Proposed Tax Congress.

Topeka Capital.

Universal interest in the subject of tax revision will no doubt cause President Hoover to consider seriously the appeal of the National Association of Real Estate Boards for a national tax congress "to collect information and devise proposals for rationalizing the whole tax system and adjusting it more equitably, according to ability to pay."

Real estate boards in numerous cities have been a valuable agency in improving the administration of tax systems. In such cities as Buffalo, Minneapolis, Detroit and others their proposals have resulted in substantial tax relief to city taxpayers. These boards have confined their efforts primarily to administration of taxes, but in petitioning the President for a tax congress at which cities, agricultural interests, States and Federal Government would be represented, they include reorganization of the tax systems in vogue, such as they are.

LETTERS TO THE EDITO

Taxes on Wine and Beer Would Eliminate Deficit, Bootleggers and Racketeers, Says Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Parker Williams might be right in his estimate of booze drinking in one particular, that is, as to men over 21 years old, but, on the other hand, take a look at the children of today; boys and girls of fifteen and over think it is smart to get illegal whisky and get "stewed," and their parents are so disgusted with the wrangle over prohibition that they do not seem to care or put a curb on their young ones.

Personally, I am not a "wet." I care not for liquor of any kind, but I do believe in the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, and any decent man or woman, who has the betterment of the country at heart, instead of personal interest, and political interest, will vote for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

If the repeal of the eighteenth amendment should be put to a popular vote, the people voting for the retention of it would be the people who derive a benefit from it; namely, bootleggers, gangsters who handle it, and political bosses who derive a graft from it. Decent people who are paying the $400,000,000 which it costs annually to try to enforce prohibition would vote for repeal. The Treasury deficit is running into the hundreds of millions. If the Government repealed the eighteenth amendment it would save that $400,000,000, and, in all probability, take in about $800,000,000 more in taxes on wine and beer, which is now going to the gangsters and racketeers. To my way of thinking, that is something for the Government and the people, who are supposed to run the Government, to take into consideration. Of course, I am not in favor of the saloon, and I do not think that it will ever come back, but I would rather have the saloon back any day in preference to the present condition of things. If only the people would look at it in a broadminded way as to what is best for the country as a whole, and stop worrying about their neighbors, this country would be much better off.

HOWARD.

Virginian Says Chain Store Tax Will Be Passed On to the Public—Ready to Increase Rail Rates.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As was to be expected, Senator Brookhart comes out with a statement condemning the contemplated action of the railroad executives in asking for an increase in railroad rates, and threatening them with Government ownership if such request is pressed.

When the Supreme Court recently upheld the validity of the chain store taxes, Senator Brookhart rushed to the press with the assertion that the decision was a great victory for the people, which shows that he made no attempt whatever to analyze the result of the decision. Everybody knows that this tax will be added to the cost of goods and passed on to the consuming public, thereby increasing the cost of living to the public; yet the senator acclaims it a great victory for the public.

In the little town, a suburb of Washington, where I live, I can save approximately one-third on my grocery bill per month by purchasing at one of these chain stores over what it would amount to if the same purchases are made at one of the non-chain stores. If the State in which I reside should impose a greater tax on these chain stores it will, of course, increase the grocery bills of the people.

I do not own any railroad securities, but I am convinced that there can be no prosperity to any class of people until the railroads are earning more than they are today. If an increase in rates will tend to accomplish this important factor, then I am strongly in favor of it and am quite willing, as a consumer, to bear my share of the burden. I believe the average citizen, whether farmer, mechanic or clerk, feels the same way about it. Therefore, I do not believe that the thinking people of this country will agree with Senator Brookhart in his effort to forestall any examination into the question of the desirability of increasing railroad rates.

A VIRGINIAN.

What Soviet Russia Is Planning in Air and Chemical Warfare.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of our pacifists seem sadly disturbed because Uncle Sam has a few hundred airplanes and has recently exhibited them to the public.

I should like to call their attention to certain figures made public in Izvestia, official organ of the Communist government of the U. S. S. R., sometimes still referred to as Russia.

This government has a Society of Air and Chemical Defense, on which great trouble and expense are being lavished. On October 1, 1928, it had 4,000,000 members; on October 1, 1933, it is to have 17,000,000. They are being given not only military training, but training in air and chemical defense, aviation, agitation, propaganda and research work; 4,500,000 will have military training, 2,000,000 are to be trained as marksmen, while 5,500,000 women are to train for "defense."

When, a few months ago, the U. S. S. R. sent over two or three of its airplanes to spy out the land which they are eager to destroy, they were welcomed enthusiastically by some of our cities on the west coast, and the press of our whole country gave, as far as I know, no word of warning.

At a notable Communist propaganda film show in Boston several months ago one of the speakers declared that the average American was a moron with the intelligence of a child of 14.

Who can wonder, in view of the facts given above, that the Communists should think so? Can it be that they are right?

Wedding in Warrenton Will Be Featured by Unusual Aspects.

GUESTS from Washington as well as from various points all over the Virginia hunting country will attend the marriage of Miss Anne Crevlin Serre to Mr. Raymond Dyer McGrath on Thursday in Warrenton, Va. Many festivities have been arranged for the bride, among them a luncheon tomorrow with Mrs. J. Temple Gwathmey as hostess and another to be given on Wednesday by Mrs. George Sloane.

There will be original aspects to the wedding, for the bride will have her mother, Mrs. Adaline Hand Serre, as her matron of honor and her grandmother, Mrs. George B. Hand, will give her in marriage.

The ceremony will take place at Mrs. Serre's home with a group of attractive Virginia girls as attendants. They are Miss Mildred Gaines, of Warrenton; Miss Nancy Bolby, of Winchester, and Miss Virginia Martin, of Richmond. Mr. Robert C. Winmill, of Warrenton and New York, will be best man. The ushers include Mr. George C. Sloan, also of Warrenton and New York; Mr. Frank Altschul, of New York, and Mr. James A. Slocum, of Rochester.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. G. McGrath, of Keokuk, Iowa. Miss Serre's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hand, were among the pioneers in building up the town of Scranton, Pa., and she is a decendant of John Hand, one of the founders of Easthampton, Long Island.

Mr. McGrath and his bride will sail from New York Friday on the Ile de France for Europe, where they will spend their honeymoon.

The Attorney General and Mrs. William D. Mitchell, accompanied by their son, Mr. Bancroft Mitchell, occupied Mrs. Hoover's box on the last day of the Davis Cup matches at Chevy Chase Club Saturday. They were joined later in the afternoon by the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Charles Francis Adams. Mr. Bancroft Mitchell spent the week-end in Washington with his parents.

H. Steinecke, of Spring Glen, to Mr. George J. Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Blanchard R. Gray, of Bridgeport. The ceremony will take place on June 10 in Spring Glen.

Mrs. Steinecke will be matron of honor and her daughter will act as flower girl. Mr. Gray will have as best man Mr. Bert H. Steinecke.

Miss Mary Scott Alfred Wed to Lieut. Rose.

The marriage of Miss Mary Scott Alfred, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Adrian Richard Alfred, of Annapolis, to Lieut. Rufus Edwards Rose, son of Mrs. Rose and the late R. E. Rose, of Tallahassee, Fla., took place in the chapel at the Naval Academy on Friday, at 4:30 o'clock.

Owing to the recent death of the bridegroom's father, the wedding was a quiet one. The ceremony, which was performed by Chaplain Frank H. Lash, was preceded by a program of organ music by Prof. J. W. Crosley.

The bride, who wore a gown of deep ivory satin, was attended by Miss Muriel Rose, sister of Lieut. Rose. The best man was Lieut. W. P. Tammany, U. S. N., a classmate of the bridegroom.

After July 1 Lieut. and Mrs. Rose will be at the Naval Proving Ground, Dahlgren, Va.

Yes, indeed There are
HOMING PENNIES

Perhaps you don't believe there are any Homing Pennies. Perhaps you think that money just naturally has a habit of going places. And going and going and going . . . Well, if that's your idea, it's plain to us you've been trading in the wrong stores.

There's an A&P store as close to your house as we could possibly put it.. It's selling the best food at prices that allow hundreds of dollars in penny savings to find their way back to the homes of its customers every year.

That's what we mean by Homing Pennies—the money you save, which returns home with you in your purse after shopping at A&P. And, once there, it's the money that really stays at home—at YOUR home. It amounts to plenty, too; in fact, it's many times greater than our own profit.

A COORDINATED radio broadcasting system designed to serve the entire British Isles is being installed in Great Britain, Sir John C. W. Reith, director general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, told members of the Federal Radio Commission on his visit to the National Capital.

The British plan calls for nine stations of 30,000 watts, one station of 50,000 watts, or equivalent to the highest powered stations in this country, and a few smaller stations scattered throughout the Isles.

Synchronization experiments in England, under which a network of stations is maintained on the same channel by means of wire control, are working out successfully, according to Sir John, although some difficulty has been encountered because of "mush" areas created by the multiple operation of transmitters on the same channel.

Sir John has accepted the invitation of the Newspaper Radio Editors Association to address its members at the annual meeting in Chicago on June 9th.

FIVE new radio features will go on the air today and tomorrow, four of them to be heard over local stations. The most widely heralded has been the new six-day-a-week Camel Quarter Hour series, featuring Morton Downey, Anthony "Tony" Wons, and Jacques Renard's Orchestra (WMAL, 6:45 p. m. today).

A new morning program, alternately featuring Emery Deutsch's Ensemble, Vincent Sorey's Music-Makers and Nat Brusiloff's Rhythm Kings, will be known as "The Commuters" (WMAL, 8 a. m. this morning).

The Hellmann Troubadour will make his bow to the radio audience from WRC at 11 o'clock this morning. He is Lanny Ross, tenor, who is well known as the "Troubadour of the Moon."

HIGHEST aspirations in music are the goal of the new period to be inaugurated tomorrow night (WRC, 7:30 p. m.) by Alfred Wallenstein, famous cellist, of the New York Philharmonic, who will conduct the Virtuosos, an orchestra of strings.

Alfred Wallenstein, a very young man, is in the forefront of musical genius. He studied in Europe and America, spending several years with Julius Klender, the great cellist. He has toured in concert all over the world, staying almost four years in Mexico and South America. A good portion of this tour was with Pavlowa.

He is so anxious to make the Virtuosos one of the finest organizations on the air that this 30-minute program will have a rehearsal period of four hours instead of the customary two hours.

Haunting strains of Indian, Spanish, Central and South American native tunes will be featured during the Lure of the Tropics program, to begin tomorrow night (WEAF network, 6 p. m.). Because of the Amos 'n' Andy conflict, this feature will not be on the air locally.

AMERICAN and Canadian radio listeners will ride in with the Empress of Britain, newest liner of the Canadian Pacific fleet, when she approaches Quebec at the end of her maiden voyage today.

Featured artists and the ship's orchestra under the direction of Stuart Jones will be heard as she steams down the St. Lawrence River. George Hicks, NBC announcer, will be aboard. The exact hour can not be predetermined nor has it been definitely decided whether the WJZ or WEAF network will be used. WRC will take the program, if possible.

An effort to broadcast the world's turf classic, the English Derby at Epsom Downs, will be made on Wednesday of this week.

The distinguished American poet, Robert Frost, will read his own poetry during the program "Poems" (WJZ network, 9:45 p. m. Wednesday).

Opera will be broadcast from the stage of the Royal Opera House, London, for the second time this season, if the weather permits (WMAL, 2 p. m. today). Rosa Ponselle is the star of Mozart's "Magic Flute."

A NEW rectifier tube, which may make possible important savings in the manufacture of every type of radio and television equipment, will be shown for the first time by the Perryman Electric Co. at the radio trade show in Chicago next week.

The tube not only permits of efficient building of smaller radio receivers, according to Joseph D. R. Freed, president of the company, but will also place fine radio reception in the home on a more economical basis. The tube will be known as type 588, replacing the 280, and is said to be as radical an advance in tube manufacture as were the pentode and tetrode tubes.

The third of a series of four concerts will be given by Frances Shea, soprano, during the regular noon organ recital by George F. Ross over WRC on Wednesday.

THEIR singing of the novelty number "One Man Band" on Saturday night places the male quartet, known over the local ether as the Dodge Four and the Melodious Milkmen, right in the front ranks of the close harmony singers. William Abernathy, of WRC, is manager of the organization.

Art INTERPRETS the MODE

Afternoon dress of gray crepe de chine with interesting drawnwork and a novel little cape. (Courtesy of Mirande, Paris.)

New York, May 31.

OF COURSE, "if the shoe fits put it on," but don't put it on unless you're sure it conforms to the recognized standards of shoe smartness. And shoe smartness this season means simplicity above all, but added to careful workmanship and fine materials, with all our fashions presenting such bewildering variety, shoes maintain the perfect balance by being limited to just a few styles in smartness.

First and foremost, for all day wear the opera pump form continues to be the favorite. And in all my recent sleuthing around the Ritz (on the Vendome side, of course), to get the latest fashion news for you, I saw only several exceptions to this pump vogue and they were low cut laced shoes of the oxford type with two or three eyelets. Kid is by far the preferred leather for day time wear, but sometimes it is incrusted with lizard of the same shade in front, and lizard is also used for the heel. Patent leather, black, of course, is also very smart, and one pair I noticed the other day had a mosaic effect of gray lizard and the patent leather forming the border—to go with the gray tailleur and the black accessories of the smart Parisienne wearing them.

Though fabric shoes, not only for evening but also for afternoon and sports wear, are shown by all the leading bottiers, they are almost without exception combined with leather. Heavy white linen, for instance, for summer sports, is combined with brown or black leather straps and trimming. And crepe or satin slippers always have at least a piping of leather. Gold and silver kid pipe evening slippers, but never in the smartest ones are used for the entire shoe.

Matching the color of your shoe to that of your gown still continues for evening. But I think it can be carried to an extreme. Some colors simply will not make chic shoes. Though a well-known leader of fashions had her crepe slippers dyed to match her plum-colored gown I thought black would have been far smarter myself.

* * * *

There's something about gray crepe, untrimmed, that is irresistible to the average woman. Somehow, no other fabric and no other color is quite as lively unadorned as this—and a very lovely example is the afternoon frock of dove gray crepe de chine from Mirande that I have sketched for you today. It was clever indeed to use bands of drawnwork to emphasize the frock's charm. N' that demure little cape that ties in a wee bow in front isn't quite so demure in back, for it is joined to the frock by a band of the drawnwork in a highly sophisticated fashion.

A frock of many uses in the afternoon line, this—and one which you of the clever fingers would have no trouble at all in adapting for your own selves.

* * * *

In case you wonder how the bands of drawnwork can be put on a frock on the bias, as is done with the dress sketched for you today, the plot is to make your bands of drawnwork first, and then put them into the dress as incrustations. "Com-pren-nay?"

Breathes there a lovely lady anywhere with soul so dead that she doesn't just long for summer to come, especially for its aquatic joys? Or, more particularly, for summer bathing, whether it's in Old Briny itself, or some little jewel of a mountain lake? We know how it is—and, of course, must add our bit to your enjoyment by designing for you the smartest beach ensemble you ever saw. Better hurry and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope off to the Dare department of The Washington Post to find out how easy it is to make this complete beach ensemble that you can change to suit your every mood.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

IF June 1 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:45 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 6:10 p. m., and from 9:15 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. The danger hours are from 9:10 a. m. to 10:50 a. m., and from 6:30 p. m. to 8:25 p. m.

The planetary aspects of June 1 denote delay and obstruction. No matter what you try, or how hard you try, things will not run smoothly and there will be numerous difficulties. Under such conditions it will be wise to stick to routine and carry out obligations only.

Children born on this June 1 will be headstrong and extreme. They will only "go it on their own," and will disregard alike advice or signs. As they grow older, experience will have taught them many valuable lessons by which they will profit to their ultimate advantage and benefit.

Born on June 1, you possess a very tempestuous nature. You are mercurial and unsettled. You love change of environment and variety of occupation. No matter how pleasing your surroundings may be, regardless of the congeniality of your work, you are never satisfied and seek "fresh fields and pastures new," even though you know it is to your disadvantage to do so. You must be always "on the move" and although the harbor may be a safe one, you "weigh anchor" and sail for another port.

You are independent in thought and action, and possess a great measure of originality. If you would only stick at it, no matter what the "it" is, your life would be a successful, even if uneventful one. The signs denote that you will always "fall on your feet," but you are liable to fall on a hard, ploughed field, rather than on a springy, velvety lawn.

You have a very likeable personality, and can always interest a social gathering by stories of things seen and heard. When at work there are none that work harder. You also can loaf both gracefully and scientifically. One of your type should only marry a similar type. A home would never appeal to you. Obligations bore you, but the personal companionship of a fellow roamer would, however, be a source of pleasure.

ROSE CALENDAR FOR JUNE.

JUNE is the month when we begin to reap the rewards for our labors in March, April and May. Our borders reflect at this time work of the last twelve weeks.

Suppose we begin and take account of stock, as it were. According to the rose calendar on June 5, our hybrid perpetual roses should be in their full glory, so we must watch for rosebugs; go over the bushes each morning, carrying a kettle of kerosene and water, and shake off the nefarious beetles into the liquid. This is quite practical where you have a half dozen bushes or more plants and few insects, but where you have a real rose plot with 25 plants, I think it is much better to spray the plants with arsenate of lead spray.

Arsenate of Lead Spray.

3 teaspoonfuls of arsenate of lead powder.
1 ounce of any liquid soap.
1 teaspoonful of nicotine sulphate.
1 gallon of water.

The rosebugs are hard insects to discourage. The best time to get at them is in the early morning, when they are a little less active, though any time is a good time for killing rosebugs. Plain arsenate of lead mixed with glucose is the favorite prescription of some of the older gardeners. They say that the bugs partake of the mixture for the sweet and eventually die.

About the twelfth of the month it is well to stir the soil about the roots of each rose and add a trowelful of half bonemeal and half sheep manure. This must be thoroughly incorporated with the soil.

About the fourth week of June our hybrid teas will be in full bloom.

Constant vigilance is now in order, for we must still wage warfare on rosebugs, mildew and black spot.

Mildew and black spot can be controlled with Massey dust, a powder, composed of nine parts dusting sulphur and one part lead arsenate. One application will not do much good. It is necessary to apply the mixture every ten days. Also go over the plants each day, removing the dead leaves and flowers. These must be burned to prevent a spread of the disease.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Virtue's Dividends.

JANET wishes to know just wherein Virtue finds its own much talked about reward. Janet asks in what way a girl profits by being what Janet calls "good." As she sees it the sum total of her reward is a lot of dull evenings at home with perhaps a husband after years and years and years. While the other girl has one glorious time—and when ready to settle down, does so, usually picking the man some other girl has been praying for. And they live happily ever after! Where does Miss Goody-good come in?

If enough more girls are interested in this vital matter we will offer our humble opinion on a much misunderstood subject. Anybody want to hear it? Well, we will give it any way—for Janet's sake. Here goes. We would like to ask in the first place why girls who start out to be "good" succeed in being only deadly dull?

In the second place, we would like to know how the "good" girls are able to classify the "other" girls? How do they know the others are not also "good"—but just a little less dull about it?

In the third place we would love to have a "good" girl's definition of "good."

Our experience has been wide and varied, but we have yet to meet an interesting woman who prided herself upon merely being "good." Yet girls expect to be crowned Queen of the May because they are proper—no matter how dull. A girl with hair hanging in wisps that would disgust any woman will tell you that she is left sitting at home because she is "good." A girl who considers it silly to polish her nails will tell you what other girls do to "get" the men. A girl who thinks a lipstick is an instrument of the evil one, and who "never uses perfume," will tell you that a "good" girl hasn't got a chance these days. A girl who thinks it too much trouble to make herself and keep herself even presentable will tell you that men want to go out only with the "fast looking" girls.

Men are no different than women. They hate "duds." They hate to find themselves paired off at a party with some one who looks as if she had just been chased in by a storm. And whose sole distinction is her unshakable conviction that the man at her side is bent upon accomplishing her ruin—when he is only wondering how any human being could have the conceit to appear at any gathering of other human beings in such a state of disarray. Naturally the man does not beg for the privilege of escorting her to the theater or taking her to dinner at the first possible moment. And the girl goes home convinced that a "good" girl can expect nothing from these evil-minded men.

Meanwhile Nancy, who came to the party all agog for whoopee and who found herself paired off with a dumb-looking stranger instead of the man she wanted, has gone home dated solid for a week. Why? Well, the "good" girl with the stringy hair will tell you because that Nancy is just plain bad and "makes up" to every man, and no knowing what—and gets taken everywhere. Yeah? Well, here's what happened. Nancy came to the party for fun—which means conquest, of course. Nancy did not draw her man. But she knew that was no fault of the poor dumb bunny she did draw. So Nancy smiled confidently into the dumb bunny's rather nondescript eyes and said, "Something tells me this is going to be a great party—I love meeting new men!" It was a lie, of course. She wished him a thousand miles away. But it did the trick. The nondescript eyes became suddenly blue, a perfectly good, deep blue, and the dumb bunny grinned as only a relieved and grateful man, dragged to a party against his will and judgment, can grin. And after that Nancy would not have traded her bunny for all the men present. The man and Nancy both had a wonderful time.

Every man present saw Nancy having a wonderful time—and envied the man, and cut in on him, and dated Nancy for Monday night, well—then—Tuesday—night, well—then—what—night. Nancy, in the course of the evening may have kissed the strange dumb-bunny. It is more than possible the matter never came up, for the average man is quite content to leave well-enough alone. And if he is being smiled at and flirted with, and made to feel that never in his life did he strike such a good party or meet such a great little somebody, he will be more concerned with how, when and where, he can see her again, than with the possible chances of breaking out to a parked car.

Now the Nancys are many. They stand before the mirror for hours studying how to do their hair the most attractively, they go through stores sniffling new powders and being sprayed with new perfumes, they take in fashion shows at their lunch hours to see how they can make last year's dress look like the last word. They would not think of going out to mail a letter without first powdering the nose, and making sure of the cupid's bow. They may be utterly trivial mentally—but they are justifying their existence and fulfilling their destiny, which is—plainly and truthfully speaking—nothing more than to appear well in man's sight that he may look favorably upon them and give them children.

Now roar and wail and rave if you will, but it narrows down to just that. And many's the time we have wondered why the "good" girls can not be good and be snappy too!

Incidentally, tomorrow in this column a man will tell you some very plain facts about why some girls get dated and some do not.

Your Name
WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

ALTHOUGH the family name "Dover" is found in the earliest English records, it is ultimately of Celtic origin. The families who bear this name have generally received it because of having once lived in the seaport of Dover, Kent, England. This place-name is derived from the Welsh "dwfr," which means "the water." Early thirteenth century English records show the names of Richard de Dovere, Godwinus de Dovre and Hugo de Dovre.

The family name "Hawke" (also spelled "Hawk") is one of the many English family names which are based on the names of birds. There is evidence that in some cases it was originally given as a nickname to persons with fierce or cruel dispositions. Sometimes it was first given to persons who lived in a dwelling which displayed the image or picture of a hawk as a means of identification. Finally, it is known that occasionally "Hawke" was given as a personal name to children. The Hundred Rolls mentions a certain Jocelin de Hawke. The name occurs frequently in fourteenth century records.

The family name "Hawkesby" is of English and Scandinavian origin. It means "the habitation of Hawke," and points to an original place of residence. The personal name "Hawke" is taken from the name of the bird, and was given as a nickname, signname and personal name.

The family name "Hawkshaw" is derived from the old English "hafocsceaga." It means "the hawk-woods," that is, the woods frequented by hawks, and points to an original place of residence. This name does not seem to occur in the oldest records. An English legal document dated 1707 bears the name of Peter Hawkshaw.

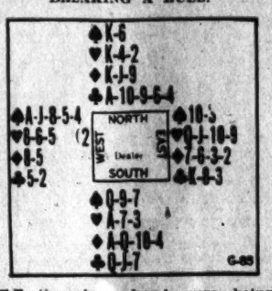
WORK ON BRIDGE

BREAKING A RULE.



If the above hand were being played at Auction Bridge, South's bid of one No Trump would be followed by three passes. At Contract, South bid one No Trump, West passed and North bid three No Trumps. Both North and South held well above the minimum requirements for their respective bids.

West led the Five of Spades, which was won by dummy's King. Eight tricks were in sight, with the Club finesse the only possibility for winning game. The finesse was won by East, who led Ten of Spades. South played the Nine, but West took with the Jack and quickly won four more Spade tricks. Five Spades and a club set the contract two tricks. Declarer admitted that he could have made one more trick by playing it safe, but contended that he took the only chance for making game. Was he right or wrong?

THE CORRECT PLAY.

Declarer's mistake was in playing dummy's King of Spades on the first trick. This play, ordinarily, would be correct. The chances favored the King's holding the trick, in which case another Spade lead from West would give Declarer a second Spade trick. But with this hand West could not possibly obtain the lead unless some other player led a Spade and the hand's sole essential play—the Club finesse—stood an even chance of giving the lead to East. South therefore should make every effort to keep control of Spades till East no longer has any to lead. East should be allowed to win the first Spade trick with the Ten. If East holds three Spades and the King of Clubs, and West refuses to play his Ace to the second trick, game can not be made. If East holds but two Spades, as was the case in this hand, West is forced to win the second trick or give up all hope of taking a trick. South wins ten tricks—one above his contract.

YEARS OF GRACE

By MARGARET AYER BARNES

SYNOPSIS.

Jane is 36, still attractive and slightly restless from an unsatisfied desire for romance. She and Stephen love one another, but their married life has not been a romantic one. It has been ten years since Stephen looked at her as anything else but Jane, his wife. Jane thinks back to her childhood romance with Andre Duroy, who is now a famous sculptor in Paris, and who has been married to a young and beautiful French woman, Mlle. Cyrrienne Firmenel-Gramont. Stephen arrives at Seaconit. A letter from her old school friend, Agnes, who is married and living in New York, invites her there for a visit, and Jane decides to go.

JIMMY—CHAPTER III.

The heat of the September day still pervaded the city streets as Jane descended from the top of the Fifth avenue bus and turned, a trifle uncertainly, under the arch, to walk south and west across Washington Square. Jane had had very little experience in looking after herself and she always felt a trifle uncertain when wandering alone in strange places. Earlier that very afternoon, in emerging from the Bay State Limited, she had found the congested turmoil of the Grand Central Station a little overwhelming. It had seemed quite an adventure to choose a black porter and follow him as he threaded his way through the crowded concourse and out past the swinging doors through the traffic of Forty-Second street to the lobby of the Belmont Hotel.

Jane had felt just a little queer, as she stood alone at the desk, her luggage at her feet, signing the register and asking for a single room and bath for the night. It was perfectly ridiculous—she was 36 years old—but Jane really couldn't remember ever having spent a night alone at a hotel before. She was very glad that Flora and Mr. Furness would join her at noon next day and greatly relieved to discover that a letter from Agnes was waiting for her, confirming her invitation to dinner and containing explicit directions as to how to reach the Greenwich Village flat.

Washington Square Disappointing.

"Come at 6," Agnes had written. "I get out of Macy's at 5:30 and I'll be there before you."

Washington Square, thought Jane, gazing curiously about her, wasn't all it was cracked up to be. It didn't look like the cradle from which a city's aristocracy had sprung. There was a nice old row of red-brick houses at the north end, but many of them seemed rather gone to seed and dilapidated.

Jane left the square at the southwest corner and, referring once more to the written directions that Agnes had given her, plunged into the congestion of the city streets. This was a funny place to choose to live in, thought Jane, as she pushed through a group of pale-faced little girls, skipping rope on the sidewalk. It was a funny place to choose in which to bring up a child.

Presently she came to Agnes' corner. Charlton street was quite broad and paved with cobblestones. A car track ran down the center of the street. The houses on both sides were built of red brick, with white frame doorways. Nice white-panelled front doors with fanlights above them and brass knobs and knockers, some brightly polished.

Odor of Cooking Cabbage.

Agnes' house was in the center of the block. It looked just like all the others. Jane mounted the front steps and regarded the empty hole, where a doorbell had once hung, for a moment in perplexity. Then she pushed open the front door. She found herself in a small white-panelled vestibule, carpeted with yellow linoleum. Three mailboxes met her eye and on the middle one a card, "Mr. and Mrs. James Trent." She pushed the electric bell beneath the mailbox and, after a minute or two in which absolutely nothing happened, she opened the inner door. The odor of cooking cabbage instantly assailed her nostrils.

Jane slowly ascended the stairs into comparative darkness. The odor of cooking cabbage grew fainter. At the front end of the upper corridor was a second white-paneled door. Jane knocked at it tentatively. She heard, immediately, the sound of masculine footsteps and the airy notes of a masculine whistle, a fragment of "La Donna e mobile" from "Rigoletto." The door was suddenly opened by a young man. He stood smiling at her on the threshhold. A rather charming young man, with tousled dark hair and open collar who looked, Jane thought from the dusk of the corridor, with his quizzical eyebrows and his pointed ears and his ironical smile, exactly like a faun.

"Come in," he said pleasantly.

"I—I'm looking for Mrs. James Trent," said Jane.

Astonished at His Youth.

"Come in," the young man repeated. Jane stepped, a little hesitantly, over the threshold. "You must be Jane." His smile deepened into a grin of appreciation. "You don't look at all as I thought you would. Come in and sit down. Agnes will be home any minute." Then, as she continued to stare at him in perplexity, "I'm Jimmy."

Jane's eyes widened with astonishment. This boy, Jimmy—Agnes's husband? He did not look a day over 25. Jane knew he was 34, however.

"Oh—how do you do?" She said. "Yes—I'm Jane."

"Sit down," said Jimmy, throwing an armful of music from the sofa to the floor. "Hot as hell, isn't it?"

"I'm afraid I'm very early," said Jane, sitting down in the armchair.

"No, Agnes is late," said Jimmy. He was standing before the Victorian mantel, still regarding her with an appreciative grin. "You look as cool as a cucumber in that blue silk. Maybe I ought to put on my coat."

Looks Nice and Byronic.

"Oh, no," said Jane politely. She hadn't noticed his shirt-sleeves until that moment.

"Well, anyway, a necktie," persisted Jimmy engagingly, fingering his open collar.

"You look very nice and Byronic as you are," smiled Jane.

"I know I do," said Jimmy rather surprisingly. "I get away with a lot of that Byron stuff. But just the same I think I owe that French frock a cravat." He walked across the room as he spoke and, opening a door, disappeared into the inner recesses of the apartment.

The sound of running water from the interior of the apartment distracted her attention. Jimmy was a great surprise. She had never thought that he would be like that. She glanced at the sheets of music on the sofa. The one on top of the pile was half-filled with pencilled notations. He must have been writing music. Evidently he was a composer on the side. Agnes had never mentioned that.

The door to the inner rooms opened suddenly and Jimmy reappeared, freshly washed and brushed, his collar rebuttoned, and a soft blue necktie bringing out the color in his smiling eyes. He picked up his coat from the back of the sofa and put it on with a sigh.

"What men do for women!" he murmured as he adjusted his collar.

Infant Prodigy, He Calls Jane.

"What women do for men!" laughed Jane. "This dress is French, but it's fearfully hot."

"I bet you didn't put it on for me!" grinned Jimmy. Jane's blush acknowledged the home thrust. "You just wanted to show Agnes how well you'd withstood the assaults of time."

Jane had thought Agnes might think the dress was pretty. Not that Agnes ever noticed clothes, of course.

"You must have been an infant prodigy," went on Jimmy. He was sitting on the sofa now, his elbows on his knees, his eyes fixed flatteringly on her face.

"Why?" asked Jane unguardedly.

"To have been Agnes' classmate," said Jimmy promptly.

Jane frowned. She didn't like that. She didn't like it at all. That was no way for Agnes' husband to speak of Agnes.

"I wish she'd come home," she said with severity.

"Do you?" smiled Jimmy. "Well, she will soon. She stops at the Play School every evening to bring home the child. It began again last week, thank God! Another day of vacation and I should have committed infanticide."

Jane did not reply to this sally. She continued to look, very seriously, at Jimmy. But he rattled on, ignoring her silence.

Clever Views, But "Untrue."

"A play school is a wonderful invention. It takes children off their parents' hands for nine hours a day. I call it immoral—but very convenient. So much immorality is merely convenience, isn't it? We resort to it, 'faute de mieux.' Saloons and play schools and brothels—they're all cheap compromises, forced on us by civilization. In an ideal Utopia I suppose we'd all drink and love and bring up our children at home. Do it and like it—though that seems rather a contradiction in terms. Progressive education is really only one of many symptoms of decadence. It's a sign of the fall of the empire." He paused abruptly and looked charmingly over at Jane, as if waiting for her applause. Jane felt an inexplicable impulse not to applaud him.

"That's all very clever," she said quickly. "But of course it isn't true."

Jimmy burst into amiable laughter. "So you are a pricker of bubbles, are you, Jane?" he asked amusedly. "You certainly don't look it. Are you a defender of the truth and no lover of dialectic for dialectic's sake? Do beautiful rainbow-colored bubbles, all made up of watery ideas and soapy vocabulary, floating airily, without foundation, in the void, mean nothing in your life?"

Very Practical, Jane Calls Herself.

"Very little," said Jane severely. "I'm a very practical person."

"I seem to be a creature of one idea this afternoon," said Jimmy lightly, "but I can only repeat—you don't look it! The picture you present, as you sit in that armchair, Jane, is far from practical——"

As he spoke, Jane heard with relief the sound of a latch-key in the outer door.

"That's Agnes!" she cried, springing to her feet.

"It must be," said Jimmy, rising reluctantly to his.

The door opened quickly, and Agnes, hand in hand with her 5-year-old daughter, stood beaming on the threshold. Just the same old Agnes, with her funny freckled face and her clever smile! No—somehow a slightly plumper, rather more solid Agnes, with a certain maturity of gesture and authority of eye! Jane clasped her in her arms. It was not until the embrace was over that she noticed how gray Agnes' hair had grown. It showed quite plainly under her broad hat-brim. Jane sank on her knees before the child. She looked a little pale and peaked, Jane thought, but she was Agnes all over again—the little Agnes that Jane had known in the first grades of Miss Milgrim's School! How preposterous—how ridiculous—to see that little Agnes once more in the flesh! How absurdly touching! Jane clasped the child gently in her arms.

"Agnes!" she cried. "She's precious! She's just like you!"

Jimmy's Looks Never Pall.

"Unfortunately," remarked Agnes with mock cynicism. "When she might have favored her fascinating father! Whatever you may say against Jimmy, Jane, you have to admit he has looks. In six years of matrimony they've never palled on me."

"Don't talk like that, Agnes," remonstrated Jimmy promptly. "You make me feel superficial. I've much more than looks. I've all the social graces. I've been exhibiting them for Jane's benefit for the last twenty minutes, and I leave it to her if my face is my fortune! I've many more important assets."

"How about it, Jane?" said Agnes, smiling. "Did he make the grade?"

"Y-yes," she said slowly, with a twinkle, rising to her feet, still holding the child's hand in hers. "I think he did—for a first impression."

"If anything," said Jimmy engagingly, "I improve on acquaintance. I'm an acquired taste, like ripe olives. I feel that's been said before. Let's say I'm a bad habit, like nicotine or alcohol. Once you take me up, you'll find it hard to get on without me."

Mary Roberts Rinehart Is Resting Comfortably

(Associated Press.)

Mary Roberts Rinehart, author, yesterday was resting comfortably at Emergency Hospital following an operation Saturday.

Mrs. Rinehart, her doctors said, was in no danger, other than the usual perils of a major surgical operation for removal of her gall bladder. Dr. James F. Mitchell, who performed the operation, said she was in excellent condition and had rallied well from the operation.

RUTH'S HOMER BEATS NATS, 4-2, BEFORE RAIN FALLS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

BABE RUTH is not the sort of a fellow to trifle with at bat, it was noted by Clark C. Griffith after the rain in the eighth inning had driven him to cover of the club offices. Thus he laid the blame for yesterday's defeat of the Nats directly at the door of Lloyd Brown, his southpaw pitching star.

In a session with the correspondents, Griffith scored the strategy of Brown with Ruth at the plate in the seventh inning, two out, the score tied at 2-2, and one man on base.

"Brown had just grooved one for Ruth and the Babe missed it," said Griffith. "Then he tried to get away with another pitch right down the middle, which was suicide for any pitcher with a man like Ruth at the plate. The was foolish pitching and I wasn't surprised when the Babe smacked it on a line into the bleachers. Brown is old enough to know better."

It was a bad day all around for young Joe Kuhel, who is substituting so ably for Joe Judge at first base. His error in the seventh, which preceded Ruth's homer, was the turning point of the game. He made the mistake of fielding the ball between hops and the boot resulted, but this sort of a misplay is more easily excused by the players than the fans.

Kuhel acquitted himself well in engineering the unassisted double play that wiped out a Yankee rally in the second inning, but admirers of Joe Judge may be excused for the belief that Lary's liner might have been converted into a triple out. Judge might have hustled back to first base a bit quicker and gotten away the throw to second a bit sooner than Kuhel, who did not appear to realize the possibilities of a triple play until he had stepped on first to complete the double killing. But you can't condemn a guy who has just made an unassisted double play.

Lloyd Brown's wild streak yesterday was distinctly novel to Washington fans this year. Lack of control had kept the former Memphis southpaw off the staffs of both the Phillies and the Robins and for two seasons had been his bane with the Nats.

Brown regained his control this year, however, and in the first two games of the season, both of which he lost in hard-luck fashion, he failed to issue a single pass. Yesterday he walked five batters, three in the second inning. One of his passes resulted in the first New York run.

Connie Mack suffered a slight setback in dividing the two doubleheaders with the Red Sox, justifying, perhaps, prediction that his pitching staff would run into trouble in the stack of twin bills that loomed ahead.

But an even break in both of the dual affairs at Boston was by no means a dire turn of events. As a matter of fact, the series resulted actually in the addition of a half-game to the leda which the champions enjoy over the Nats and which has now reached a five-game margin again. At that rate, Connie Mack, I take it, would be content to split every other double-header for the rest of the season.

Pitching and the home run wallops of Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane apparently are carrying the Mackmen along in the pennant battle, inasmuch as the latest averages reveal that no member of the champions' infield is hitting as much as .280.

The great Foxx is batting .267, with Todt, his substiture, hitting for .248. Max Bishop is high man with .279. Jimmy Dykes has a mark of .260 and Jos Boley is batting exactly .199. The outfield and Cochrane, however, pull the team average up to .278, fourth in the league. As a team, the Macks have stolen only four bases this season. But you can't argue against that five-game lead.

Dundee-Jeby Fight Tops Week's Program

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—In point of numbers, at least, Madison Square Garden holds a wide edge over the rest of the country in fistic offerings this week.

The garden will devote three nights to boxing this week. The second of a series of new talent shows will be held tomorrow night, an international amateur contest between Italy and a picked American team on Wednesday, and then the "big" card of the week on Thursday. This latter show will be topped by a ten-round bout between Vince Dundee, Baltimore middleweight, and Ben Jeby, of New York.

The only other outstanding show of the week will be held in Mills Stadium, Chicago, Thursday night, when Jackie Fields, of Los Angeles, former welterweight champion, tangles with Relampago Saguero, of Cuba, in an eight-round bout.

Giants, Outhit, Win Over Phillies, 10-5

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—The Giants ended their home stand before leaving for the West with an easy victory over the Phillies today by a score of 10-5. The Giants broke even in eight games against the East and had lost four games in a row.

John Berly, though hit hard, managed to stagger through with the aid of a big lead. The Phils battered him for 15 hits but could do little with him in the pinches. They made one or more hits in every inning but had 11 men left on base.

British Open Holds Stage Today

8 U. S. Pros Among Favorites in Field of 200 Golfers.

Argentines Threaten; 18-Hole Qualifying to Start Today.

By FRANK H. KING.

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, May 31 (A.P.).—Great Britain's greatest golfing competition, the open championship, gets under way in this ancient stronghold of the game tomorrow.

A heavy rain and high wind kept most of the more than 200 entrants stormbound today in hotels, inns and cottages, where they crowded at the windows to watch the pelting rain and the rolling and tossing of the North Sea. There was hope, but no promise, of more favorable conditions when play starts at 9:30 tomorrow morning (3:30 a. m. E. S. T.).

Never in recent years has the championship been so wide-open an affair with a dozen Britons, Americans and Argentines conceded to be capable of winning the title, but not one of them an outstanding favorite.

U. S. Players Face Strong Opposition.

Only once in the last ten years has the British open failed to go to the United States, but this year the Americans already have played in four Big British events, and each time the big prize has slipped through their fingers to be seized by a native Briton. The Americans have crowded the leader, but they have failed to win.

The championship starting tomorrow is the most important of all British golf classics and the crack American pros here have keyed themselves up for this week's play, first to qualify safely and then to capture the title, and so remain unbroken the record of American victories since 1923, when Arthur Havers, of England, won.

There are six or eight Americans at Carnoustie good enough to win the title Bobby Jones will relinquish. They are Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, MacDonald Smith, Joe Turnesa, Horton Smith, Joe Kirkwood, Tommy Armour, Tony Manero and Willie Hunter.

Six or Eight Britons Capable of Victory.

On the other hand, there are six or eight Britons good enough to win—Archie Compston, Henry Cotton, Percy Alliss, H. C. Jolly and the three brothers, Charles, Ernest and R. A. Whitcombe.

Never was preparation for a championship so intense. There are all sorts of ambitions to be fulfilled and old scores to be settled. MacDonald Smith wants to win on his old home course; Cotton to "show up" the British Ryder Cup selection committee; Alliss and Aubrey Boomey for similar reasons; Compston to beat his British rival, Cotton; Manero to please his fiancee back in the United Stats; the Argentines to take the title back to South America for the first time.

The field of 214 will be divided for the 36-hole qualifying round between Carnoustie and the Panmure course at Barry. Carnoustie is 6,701 yards long with par of 72. Panmure is 6,410 yards long, also with par of 72, and is much the easier.

After eighteen holes of qualifying round play tomorrow, the split field will reverse courses for the final eighteen holes Tuesday. The low 100 and ties will qualify for the championship proper beginning Wednesday. Eighteen holes will be played Wednesday and eighteen Thursday after which the field will be further cut by the elimination of all those fifteen strokes or more behind the leader. The survivors then will play the final 36 holes Friday.

All-Ireland Eleven Beats New Yorkers

New York, May 31 (A.P.).—The All-Ireland champion Gaelic football team won its second match of the McGovern challenge cup competition today, defeating New York's selected team, 10-5, before 30,000 spectators at the Yankee stadium. The All-Ireland team won the first game 9-6 and leads in total points, 19-11.

U. S. Argentine Cup Teams in New York

American and Argentine Davis Cup teams departed last night on the same train for New York, the former to remain there until Saturday to sail for Europe, and the interzone finals, and the latter to rest a day before going on to Toronto and a series of exhibitions with the Dominion's tennis stars.

Capt. E. C. French headed the Argentine group, who were bid adieu by representatives of the embassy here and members of the Argentine colony. From Canada, the South Americans will go to England and Holland, and probably Germany, for games.

Smith Stars in Box As Cubs Beat Pirates

Chicago, May 31 (A.P.).—Bob Smith pitched sensationally this afternoon, limiting the Pittsburgh Pirates to two singles, the Chicago Cubs winning, 5 to 0.

Sankey singled with one out in the third, and Suhr singled with one out in the fifth for the only Pirate hits. Smith walked only one man, Lloyd Waner, first up in the first inning.

In winning their eighth game in nine starts, the Cubs pounded Heinie Meine for ten hits, three of them doubles. Cuyler twice batted home English, and Moore twice knocked home Grimm. English got three out of four, and Grimm and Moore each had two hits, including a double apiece. Manager Hornsby singled in the first inning to help produce the first run. In the sixth innings, Comorosky, in left field, made an unassisted double play.

Gazette Golf Event Captured by Burns

Alexandria, Va., May 31.—William Burns defeated T. E. Sebrell, jr., over the Belle Haven Country Club links this afternoon for the silver loving cup offered for low medalist in the eighteen-hole handicap tournament staged by the Alexandria Gazette.

Burns and Sebrell tied for the trophy with cards of 83 yesterday, but the former turned in an 80 this afternoon while Sebrell's best was an 84.

Del Ray A. C. defeated the Palisades A. C., of Washington, here this afternoon on Edward Duncan Field in a game terminated by rain in the sixth inning. The score was 13 to 3.

Columbia Engine Company and the Logan A. C., of Washington, were battling at a 10-to-7 pace with the locals cut in front when rain put a halt to festivities in the second frame. Six home runs were clouted by the rival players during that short period.

Georgetown's Kellys Seen As 1932 Track Champions

By JACK ESPEY.

GEORGETOWN UNIVERSITY may look forward to the development of two college track champions next year, judging from reports of the performances of Al Kelly, sprintex, and Jim Kelly, half-miler, at the intercollegiate meet last weekend at Philadelphia.

Neither of the Kellys crashed through to a victory, but they were so close on the heels of the winners in their respective events that, according to observers, eash deserves nothing but compliments.

According to J. Kip Edwards, local A. A. U. track leader, who viewed the games both days, and whose son, Jake, competed for Pennsylvania, Al Kelly was only a step behind Frank Wykoff, the winner, and Eddie Tolan, world record holder, in the final of the 100-yard dash. Wykoff's time was 9.6 seconds, a new record for the meet, and only one-fifth slower than Tolan's world mark.

Coach John D. O'Reilly, of Georgetown, stated he was told by one of the timers that it had been calculated that Al Kelly's time was 9.7 seconds, which is fast time in any sort of competition. Such speed was never at-

Tribe Stops Tigers In Hectic Game, 6 to 4

Detroit, May 31 (A.P.).—Cleveland took a wild 6 to 4 game from Detriot in the series closer here today; a balk by George Uhle and two errors figuring in three of the Indian runs. The balk permitted Morgan to score from third.

Hudlin held the Tigers to two runs in the first six innings, while his teammates were accumulating five, but gave way to Wesley Ferrell in the seventh after the first four Tiger batsmen had singled, driving in two runs. Ferrell was almost ejected for insisting on more than the legal number of warm-up pitches upon entering the box and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh was sent to the clubhouse by Umpire McGowan for protesting too vigorously when McGowan called a wide warm-up throw a ball. Morgan hit a homer in the seventh with none on.

Easton Nine Defeats Mardela by 8-3 Count

Special to The Washington Post.

Easton, Md., May 31.—Easton defeated Mardela, last year's champions of the Eastern Shore League, before a large crowd at Federal Park today by score of 8 to 3.

Hummer was in the box for the home team and allowed them but four scattered hits, which were made after he let up in the seventh inning, and the runs were made on errors of Easton's infield. He pitched fine ball, striking out twelve men.

California and Stanford Boost U. S. Olympic Stock

Coast Athletes Show Superiority Over Easterners in I. C. A. A. A. A. Meet; Set Four Records and Equal Two Others.

By HENRY M'LEMORE
(United Press Correspondent).

NEW YORK, May 31 (U.P.).—Any doubt that might have existed as to whether or not the United States should be a power in the 1932 Olympics was dispelled on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday, when the University of Southern California and Stanford staged their dual meet in the finals of the I. C. A. A. A. A. track and field championships.

Here are a couple of track teams that are track teams. The Trojans won, and must be classed as the more powerful outfit of the two, but the margin of superiority is very slight. Indeed, had Stanford been in full possession of its full strength, the outcome might well have been an entirely different matter.

Dyer, Smith Missed By Stanford.

With Hec Dyer, crack furlong runner, and Roger Smith, capable hurdler, both out with injuries, Stanford tallied enough punch to score 44 22-35 points to 46 6-7 for U. S. C.

The statistics of the meet clearly reveal the power packed by the Far Western athletes and just how superior they are to teh boys of th once proud and invincible East.

Four new intercollegiate records were established during the two-day stand of the carnival, and far Western athletes accounted for all of them. One world mark was tied, and that performance, too, was turned in by a Californian. And, as if that were not sufficient, the one intercollegiate marked tied was tied by still another Western performer.

The new intercollegiate marks established follow: 100-yard dash, Frank Wykoff, U. S. C., 9.6 seconds; pole vault, William Graber, U. S. C., 14 feet ½ inch; running broad jump, William Barber, U. S. C., 25 feet 3½ inches; javelin, Kenneth Churchill, California, 220 feet 11¼ inches.

The world mark for the 440-yard dash was equaled by Vic Williams, U. S. C., when he streaked the distance in 47.4 seconds, and the intercollegiate time of 23.6 seconds in the 220-yard hurdles was equaled by Ernest Payne, also of U. S. C.

Wykoff Twice Equaled "100" Record.

There really was another mark tied, for Wykoff broke the cenury record on Friday and came right back to blaze down the chute in the same time on Saturday. The far Western comet's victory established him as the finest sprinter in this or other lands, for in [illegible] he defeated Eddie Tolan, of [illegible] holder of the accepted world record for the distance. A little more [illegible] his holes and Wykoff probably would have had a mark all of his own.

Career as Nat Is Near End For Liska

Hurler Fails to Show Improvement; Slated for Release.

Fischer to Oppose Sherid in Series Finale Today.

PITCHER AD LISKA'S days as a National appear to be numbered; at least as far as 1931 is concerned. The subway ball hurler has had nothing but hard luck this season and Manager Walter Johnson, who was quite enthusiastic when Liska took his first workout in Chicago after returning from treatments by a miracle man at Dwight, Nebr., has virtually concluded that Liska has lost practically all of his stuff.

It is possible that a blow Liska received on his pitching arm his first day out in Chicago handicapped him slightly, but this has healed now and still the young hurler appears to have made little progress. "He's just pushing the ball," said Johnson in discussing Ad's case, "and seems to have lost his speed and hasn't more than a wrinkle when he tries to curve the ball. He may be all right in time, but I can't see that he'll be any use to us for weeks, at least, and we can't afford to wait that long for him."

Makes Report To Griffith.

Johnson has so reported to President Clark Griffith, but the Nat owner wants to take a look at Liska himself before passing final judgment. He probably will ask the hurler to show him his stuff before today's game.

In case Liska fails to improve, Griffith was not prepared to say just what action he will take. The Nats could not get a minor league club to take him, while the Washington Club, of course, does not feel that it can pay out money for no services, indicating that Liska's name probably will be placed on the "voluntarily retired" list.

Although the schedule shows that the Nationals draw a blank today, this open date will be used. The Yankees will be held over and they and the Nats will play off the 14-inning tie staged here in late April. Carl Fischer is due to draw the native mound assignment, while Roy Sherid probably will toil on the hill for the New Yorkers in this game which will mark the end of the current series.

Robins Win First, 9-2; Tie Braves in Second

Brooklyn, May 31 (A.P.).—The Robins won their fourth straight victory by defeating the Boston Braves here today, but could obtain no better than a ten-inning 3-to-3 tie in the second.

The second game was a duel between Hollis Thurston and Tom Zachary, and ruined for the Robins by Outfielder Randy Moore, who drove in all three of Boston's runs with two home runs. Moore a second home run came with two out in the ninth inning and with two strikes on him.

The game was called on account of darkness.

RED SOX GET EVEN BREAK WITH A'S

Win Second Game of Twin Bill, 7-3, After 7-4 Defeat.

BOSTON, May 31 (A.P.).—The Red Sox divided a double-header with the Philadelphia Athletics today, dropping the first game, 7 to 4, but winning, 7 to 3, in the second, which was called in the first of the seventh to comply with the Sunday sports law.

Haas, McNair and Pickering hit home runs in the opener and E Miller hit for the circuit in the second game. The Mackmen lost two regulars, Catcher Cochrane and Shortstop Boley, by leg injuries in the second game.

Prior to the Red Sox series, in which they obtained only an even break, the Athletics had won every series in May.

WOMEN'S DISTRICT NET TITLE WON BY MRS. STONE

Miss Tabler Beaten in Finals

Succumbs in Straight Sets by Scores of 7—5, 6—2.

Rain Halts Mitchell, Mangan; Replay Due Tomorrow.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

YESTERDAY afternoon's rain held off long enough to permit Mrs. Charles P. Stone, of the Chevy Chase Club, to win the women's tennis championship of Washington, defeating Ciara Tabler in straight sets, 7—5, 6—2, but the downpour caused the ruination of the other of the day's singles features, when Dooly Mitchell and Tom Mangan were sent scampering for shelter after Mitchell had established a lead of 3-1 and deuce in the first set. The match will be replayed tomorrow, beginning at 4 o'clock.

Upward of 1,000 spectators witnessed the winning of the women's singles and the four games of the men's singles. Most of that crowd, when the rain came, congregated on the spacious front porch of the ticket cabin. Another match postponed was the final of the mixed doubles, in which Mrs. Ruth Martinez and Fredrico Sendel were destined to meet Corinne Frazier and Maj. J. Huntington Hills.

Miss Tabler Allowed to Beat Herself.

In accomplishing the rout of hard-hitting Ciara Tabler, Mrs. Stone presented as immobile a brand of backcourt play as has been seen in the three-year history of the City of Washington women's singles. Sticking to a preordained system of play, Mrs. Stone kept the ball in court at all times and permitted Miss Tabler to beat herself through the medium of errors.

Mrs. Stone managed just to hold her head above water in the first set, as Miss Tabler, stroking the ball for all she was worth, ran the Chevy Chasean back and forth across the base line in pursuit of her squarely hit shots. A break through service in the eleventh game gave Mrs. Stone her chance to take the set and she capitalized immediately by forcing her opponent into errors.

The eventual winner found things easier in the second set, as Miss Tabler found her never-too-sure accuracy deserting her. Mrs. Stone becomes the owner for a year of the D. C. Crain Trophy, held last year by Josephine Dunham and the year before by Frances Krucoff.

Mitchell Warms Up Quicker Than Mangan.

Mangan and Mitchell had no more accomplished the duty of feeling out each other when the rain stopped them. Mitchell, seeming to warm up more quickly than his older opponent, broke through Mangan's service in the first game and then held his own for a 2-0 lead. It had already begun to rain in big blots as Mangan held on to his delivery for 2-1 by outsteadying the Georgetowner from the back court. But Mitchell crashed through on his service for 3-1 and had pulled to deuce in the next game before cancellation of the day's business.

FISCHER DUE TO OPPOSE YANKEES

Southpaw Gets Call as New York Ends Stay Here.

ending the first. The ball appeared to be headed for the stands when it left the bat. This was Sam's only chance of the game.

The Yanks' second certainly was one of those trick innings. They benefited from a single and three passes yet did not score. This was due to a double-play, which missed being a triple out by just a whisker. With three on and none out, Lary lined to Kuhel, who touched first for the second out. He whipped the ball to second, but the runner returned to the sack just a step before Cronin took the throw.

Kuhel and Brown collaborated in making a fine play at Ruth's expense in the third. The first-sacker raced well over toward second for Babe's hot bounder and the pitcher, covering the sack, fell taking the low throw. While still on the ground, Brown turned and threw home to stop Reese, who had advanced from second to third on the play, from scoring.

Wells purposely walked Cronin to fill the bases with one dead in the Nats' third. Things worked out the way he hoped, for West lofted to short center and Bluege to deep left.

When Lazzeri stole in the fourth yesterday, it marked the fourth successful Yankee theft in a row in two straight games. Incidentally, it put Lazzeri in a position to score on Jorgen's single which followed. When Ruth tried it in the fifth, however, he was nipped, despite a poor peg by Spencer.

While sliding into second in the home fourth, Spencer slightly spiked Reese. He delayed coming to bat in the next round while having the minor cut dressed and changing his stocking, which was badly torn. When he finally took his place at the tee, he sent a looper well over toward center on which Sam Rice made a nice catch.

Reese raced to short right to make a pretty overhead catch of Myer's near Texas leaguer opening the home fifth.

When the clouds opened after they had had their turn at bat in the eighth, the Yankees took over Umpire Moriarity's duties and decided it was too wet to play and did not start to the field. The "umps" quickly showed them who was boss, though, and ordered them to play ball. Two batters later, he changed his mind to their way of thinking and hostilities were declared off.

REDS DEFEAT CARDS AND END JINX

Win at St. Louis for First Time Since April, 1929.

St. Louis, May 31 (A.P.).—The Cincinnatti Reds scored their first victory at Sportsmans Park in more than two years today when they took the nightcap from the St. Louis Cardinals, 7 to 2, after losing the inaugural, 7 to 5. The last time the Reds won here was April 22, 1929.

Ogden had the Red Birds hopping in the aftermath, the Cincinnati moundsman getting stronger as the game progressed. He was only in danger in the frame that counted the Cards' two runs.

Paul Derringer, starting his first major league contest, scattered the Reds' hits to win the opener. It was his fifth victory of the season without a defeat, gaining his others by creditable relief hurling.

money yesterday and $355 of the $10,000 consolation prize divided among the drivers who do not finish among the first ten.

Schneider, the victor, spent a quiet day with his wife, 6-month-old child and other relatives. He said he would race in a 100-mile dirt-track event at Roby, Ind., next Sunday.

Clessie Cummins' oil-burning racer, the first of that type in history—went through the 500-mile contest without a stop on $1.75 worth of fuel, it was announced. The motor burned 31 gallons of crude oil and finished twelfth at an average speed of 86 miles an hour. No other car had gone through the local race without a stop.

More than $93,000 in prize money will be distributed to the drivers at a dinner here tomorrow night. Fred Frame, Los Angeles, was second to Schneider, with Russell Snowberger, Philadelphia, third; Ralph Hepburn, Los Angeles, fourth, and Ernie Triplett, Los Angeles, fifth.

ing the bases with but one dead. West and Bluege failed here, however, making the Yankee strategy look good.

Brown walked Lazzeri with one gone in the fourth and, after Lary had lofted to right, the runner stole second, this enabling him to bring home the tying run on Jorgens' single.

A walk to Sam Rice and singles by Manush and West put the Nats in front again in the fifth and this was their last chance. It was here that rain would have been welcome but, as already stated, it was late in coming and gave the Yanks their winning seventh-inning opportunity.

CLIFTON BARBERS MEET.

The Clifton Barbers will meet Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the barber shop. Coach Charley Moran, former big league and C. U. athlete, will put his players through a blackboard drill.

Roettger Lands Regular Berth

Wally Roettger this season for the first time faces the prospect of steady employment.

Heretofore Roettger's major league outfielding has been interrupted by managerial master-minding—by shifting the outfield to meet the pitching for the day.

WALLY ROETTGER

It happened to Wally with the St. Louis Cards and later with the New York Giants, from whom he was obtained by the Reds in a trade that sent Hughey Critz to Gotham.

But due to the scarcity of outfield talent with the Reds this season, despite the recent signing of old Edd Roush, it seems certain that Roettger will be played every day, whether right or left-handers hurl for the opposition.

Roettger, who bats right, hit .283 last year.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

MLLE. Anastasia Zablocka, acclaimed by artists and sculptors as the most beautiful woman in Poland, probably follows the strangest diet in the world to maintain her charm and comeliness. Her diet consists entirely of eggs, a dozen or more daily. To vary this strange diet, she prepares the eggs in a different style each day (there are 760 different ways), having them boiled, scrambled, shirred, &c.; having them fixed in an omelet, or eating them without cooking at all. In this way she avoids having the diet become monotonous.

Mlle. Anastasia's use of eggs as a beauty diet encouraged hundreds of other Polish women to eat plenty of eggs. As a consequence, the egg business showed a marked increase. The Federation of Polish Poultry Farmers presented Mlle. Anastasia with a solid gold egg as a token of appreciation for what she had done for the business.

Forty-four of the fifty years of Thompson's railroad career were spent on a run between Houston, Tex., and Lafayette, La., on which line it is estimated that he traveled no less than 2,500,000 miles.

—Washington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS

WASHINGTON PARK, Chicago, May 31.—Entering its second week of racing, the program offered the patrons of the sport at Washington Park tomorrow afternoon is a very mediocre one. The card is made up of six claiming events, which will bring together the cheaper grade of platers to contest the various heats. An allowance affair for maiden 2-year-olds, a test over the 5-furlong sprint distance, will complete the program.

Although the card is devoid of an outstanding event, large fields were attracted in many of the races, which should produce some spirited contests. In the absence of a regular feature, the fifth event, which received a list of eleven contestants, will serve as the main attraction. This test will be decided over the mile route and brings together a well-balanced field of $5,000 claimers.

In this event PORTMANTEAU, from the Rose Home Stable, finished second in his last four starts and against this field over the muddy track figures to score. JOEY BIBB is another mudlark, and at the distance, should be hard to beat. LAHOR, in the Jones Stock Farm string, has raced consistently in recent tests, and is given the show call. MAYA and CHENE are outside possibilities.

FIRST RACE—The usual list of 20 entrants was received in the 5-furlong dash of the opening number, which brings together maiden juvenile fillies to conest the issue. COUSIN JUDY, a stout finisher, has turned in some clever performances over a bad track, and should enter the winner's circle. ZINA, from the T. F. Hayes Stable, closed considerable ground in her debut to finish third after much interference. With clear sailing the Transmute filly figures to furnish the opposition. PRINCESS NANCY was overmatched last start and in this company should get into the picture.

SECOND RACE—Another limit field will battle it out in the 6-furlong dash of the second number, which is fashioned for 3-year-olds and upward, fillies and mares. MARDIE, in the C. Stern string, displayed a high turn of speed in her last performance at Jamaica over a muddy strip and is well placed in this event. REVERBERATE, winner of her last start at the Downs, is a consistent mudder and will ext

SEAT PLEASANT UNLIMITEDS DEFEAT MAJESTICS

Columbia Heights Wins; Bethesda Triumphs, 4-0

Old Colony Baffled by Battle in Mont-Against Pope.

Oldfield Leader of Attack for Bethesda Against Battle.

RAIN played havoc with the unlimited class schedule in the Capital City League yesterday, only one game in both Section A and Section B being played.

Capital Heights maintained its clean slate at the top of Section B by turning back the Majestics in a pitching duel between Eddie Hutchinson and Di Nenna by a score of 5 to 3, marking its fifth straight victory.

The lone Section A game saw the Columbia Heights team rout Ciro's Italian Villagers, 7 to 0, with "Babe" Wesley pitching effectively and allowing only four hits. The victory maintained for Columbia Heights its second-place standing and buried the Villagers farther in the cellar of the section.

The pitching of Battle swung the victory tot he Bethesda club. Although he allowed seven hits to the eight permitted by Pope, Old Colony pitcher, Battle was effective in the pinchesa nd the recipient of fine support by the Bethesda club. Rain stopped the game in the sixth inning.

COMING from behind in the final inning, the Sergt. Jasper Post scored a hard-fought and well-earned 4-3 decision over the Nash Post representatives on the West Ellipse yesterday.

It wa sa battle to the end, with both aggregations displaying smooth working machines that fought on even terms throughout the major portion of the fray. The usually heavy legion bill of two games was cut exactly in half by the enforced idleness of the Spengler-Victory Post game, due to rain.

Chumbris Drives in Decisive Runs.

Going into the final half of the ninth inning, the Jaspers rallied to shove across a pair of markers and gain the decision. C. Chumbris was the hero of the occasion, his sizzling line drive to right field with the bases loaded deciding the issue. It was a real fight from start to finish, with Grimm, of Sergt. Jasper, and Everett, of Nash, hooking up in a hurling duel. The former allowed seven hits and his opponent eight. Ready and Corcoran starred at bat, each connecting safely in his two appearances ta the plate.

3 Argentine Golf Pros To Seek U. S. Open Title

The four Argentines now are in Europe and will competei n the British open, starting at Carnoustie, Scotland, tomorrow.

Perfect "Brother Act" By Farrells on Links

The Farrells, Jimmy and Johnny, have teamed as one of the few successful brother acts in sports, business or what-not. Jimmy took his younger brother in hand and made him the 1928 national open golf champion. They've won nine of their last ten exhibition matches.

NEW YORK, May, 31 (A.P.).—As a general rule there is but one thing certain with brother acts—sooner or later they go haywire. The histor of business, the stage, professional lines and even sports is littered with the wreckage of brother teams.

There is, however, one outstanding exception. It is the brother act which the Farrells, Johnny and Jimmy, have been putting on ever since Jimmy undertook to make a national open champ out of his famous younger brother.

Only One Squared Match In 10 States.

In fact, these two brothers have teamed so well on the links that in the last your years they have been held to but one even break in ten featured exhibition matches.

That was last year, when Gene Sarazen and Horton Smith, then at the top of his game, played to the eighteenth al leven with the Brothers Farrell.

In their other nine matches they have never met defeat. They have beaten Sarazen and Tommy Armour twic, Sarazen and Jack Cawsey went down before them this year. Others who have fallen before them include Francis Madden and Tommy Kerrigan; Jack Cawsey and Clyde Usina; Bill Wadelton and Bobby Cruickshank; Tom Dolan and Sarazen; Jesse Sweetser and Georgs Voigt; Jim Thompson and Dave Stewart,

But the Farrells team up in other ways. While Johnny is away playing the winter and summer open tournaments, the business goes on with Jimmy at the helm. He always has been the team's business mainspring.

It has been largely through the efforts of the elder Farrell that Johnny has attained the golf heights to which he has risen in the past five years. Jimmy's instruction made an open champion of Johnny in 1928, and Jimmy's business ability has made it possible for Johnny to profit by his accomplishment.

Jimmy holds up the business end of the Quaker Ridge Club at Mamaroneck, N. Y., in the summer time and St. Augustine in the winter.

Jimmy Business-man Of the Team.

He keeps the books and a watchful eye over the professional tsaff while Johnny is out maintaining his reputation as one of the country's foremost stylists.

Jimmy is big enough to step aside for Johnny, that is, in everything except the team exhibition matches, where the two work together almost flawlessly.

Jimmy's bad hole is Johnny's good oue. It's that way from start to fin'ahe, and so, when they're checked up on the wrecked brother acts and come to golf, they'll have one outstanding example of a team that has stood up since its formation and is still out front.

THE Wonder Bread Midgets continued their victorious march through the ranks of the midget nines by defeating their old rivals, the Georgetown Athletic Club, 10 to 3, in a Capital City League contest. The Samosets made their league bow by dropping a close one to the Shade Shop, 6 to 5, and Sangler swamped the very pale National Pale Dryo utfit, 16 to 4.

Silverman's delivery was solved early in the fray by the Breadmen, and they jumped on hi mto lead from the start. Reds and Fred Miller, Wonder aces, led the assault on Silverman. Corcoran, with two bingles, was best for the West Enders. Charley Cuozzo and Walter Johnson, jr., hurled for the winning team.

The Shade Shop, after gaining an early lead over the Samosets, lagged behind and appeared headed for disaster. A two-run rally in the lucky seventh reversed the picture, however, and brought the Shop nine victory. Eddie Turner was in rare farm, allowing the Indians only four hits, while Manager Brewer led the attack with a brace of safe blows. Turner fanned twelve.

Pale Drys' 17 Hits Prove in Vain.

The Pale Drys were unable to come through at the crucial stages of their game with the Spenglers, and the seventeen hits garnered by them off the offerings of Wiles netted only four markers. Included in the day's work were home runs by Ford, Darmsted and Wiles.

YOUTHS YELL GREETING TO CRONIN

Nats' Star Guest at Communion Breakfast of Boys.

ANY doubts that Joe Cronin, spark plug of the Nats' infield, is the idol of Capital youths must have been dispelled yesterday morning in the minds of anyone within a block of Immaculate Conception parish hall when shrill yells, shriller whistles and prolonged cheering greeted the star shortstop as he entered the auditorium to be guest of honor at a Communion breakfast of the Knights of Columbus Boys' Club.

Approximately 100 lads, some of them accompanied by their dads, let out a series of wild whoops when their hero made his appearance and he was received even more thunderously applauded when he concluded an enthusiastically received speech in which he told the boys what it takes to succeed in the battle of life as well as on the diamond.

Joe was besieged during and following the breakfast by his youthful admirers to sign base balls, paper napkins, backs of envelopes—anything they could get him to write on. One lad even asked Joe to sign his name in a prayer book.

Short talks were made by State Deputy Edward Feely, the Rev. Francis J. Hurney, pastor of Immaculate Conception Church and others interested in the club's work.

All-Intramural Nine Named by Colonials

The six managers of the teams which participated this spring in the George Washington University intramural baseball league, aided by Assistant Coaches Jean Sexton and Max Farrington, yesterday elected their all-intramural team. Each player named will be presented with a special intramural sweater, with proper insignia.

Those selected were: Pitchers, Al Vogt, of Columbian College, and Bill Wheaton, of law school; catcher, Arthur Snediker, junior college; first baseman, George Baer, premedical; second baseman, Arthur Zahn, junior college; shortstop, Forest Burgess, Columbian College; third baseman, George Terry, junior college; left field, Fred Mulvey, Columbian College; center field, Joe Hoffberg, pharmacy school, and right field, Bill West, law school.

Frank Hetzel, of engineering school, was named the most valuable player to his team, and John Wick was voted all-intramural manager. Columbian College won the league championship, with a recapitulation of eight wins and no losses.

BEASTLY DRUNK

AN OLD LEGEND SAYS THAT AT THE FOOT OF THE FIRST VINE PLANTED BY ADAM WERE BURIED A LION, A LAMB, A HOG AND AN APE. SO MEN WHO ARE DRUNK, BECOME BRUTAL AS A LION, MEEK AS A LAMB, DISGUSTING AS A SWINE, OR SILLY AS AN APE. THAT'S WHERE WE DERIVE OUR EXPRESSION "BEASTLY—DRUNK!"

YOUR WEATHER EYE

BEFORE THE DAYS OF THE BAROMETERS, ANCIENT SAILING VESSELS ALWAYS KEPT A MAN POSTED IN THE FORECASTLE TO WATCH OUT FOR STORMS OR SUDDEN SQUALLS. HIS WAS THE "WEATHER EYE" FROM THIS PRACTICE CAME THE EXPRESSION AS A WARNING TO BE ALERT OR CAUTIOUS.

BELLING THE CAT

THIS EXPRESSION TO DENOTE A RASH ACT COMES FROM AESOP'S FABLE OF THE MICE THAT FOR SELF-PROTECTION RESOLVED TO PUT A BELL ON THE CAT'S NECK, BUT NO ONE DARED TO DO IT.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

HOT WEATHER CLOTHING.

MR. TUPPER, speaking of the customs of the Chileans, said they wore black clothing. The cloth was rather heavy, the weave was likely to be fairly tight, and in it there was liable to be some wool mixed with more cotton. The men wear rather heavy black hats and the women some sort of a black head shawl or mantilla.

This practice, so productive of discomfort, is a product of their mourning customs. They mourn for a deceased relative for a period of two years and, since the families are large and extend as far as cousins about three times removed, and since the death rate is high, the mourning periods overlap, and mourning clothes, once assumed, are never escaped from. The interest is so high the debt never gets paid. Soon everybody is in black and fashion issues an edict that other dressing is not allowed.

Whatever the reason, the habit of wearing black dresses and black headwear is general among peoples of Spanish origin in America. Since so many thousand Mexicans have moved among us in recent years we are having the custom displayed under our eyes. We hope our Mexican newcomers will learn much of our ways, and they will.

We hope they will shortly drop this black dress, black headgear custom. If they are to hold their own among the masses of our population they must find ways to lessen their death rates and their sickness rates and to make themselves more comfortable. These black garments cannot be comfortable in hot weather. Black absorbs heat from sunlight. The person who goes abroad on a hot day wearing black clothes will either have his temperature go up or, else he will overwork his cooling apparatus to keep it down.

Not only is the color of such garments against them but they are too heavy, they are too closely woven, and they contain too much wool. Nor are they built according to designs that promote comfort. Finally, they can not be kept clean.

The field laborer in hot countries, in the very countries from which these people come, have taught the world just the proper garment to wear for hot weather comfort. It is of cotton, is light in weight, open in weave, and white in color. It is made into two garments—a shirt (with the tail worn out making a blouse), and the trousers loose at the bottom and not very tight at the middle. However, Mexican and other Spanish-American women are not permitted by custom to follow this example set by their fellow countrymen.

CAUSES OF HIVES.

Mrs. L. G. writes: Can hives be caused from anything except diet? I have dieted for several years with no result.

Reply.

Among the many causes of hives are: Association with cats, chickens, or other animals, including birds. Articles of food are most frequently responsible.

LIME IN FOODS.

Mrs. R. F. writes:

1. Are there any foods that contain lime? Will you name a few if there are?

2. Is it healthful for an adult to drink lime water by itself?

3. What is the cause of heartburn?

Reply.

1. Yes. Milk, butter, cereals, bran, whole wheat flours, nuts are some of them.

2. In most cases it will make no difference.

3. Among the causes are gallstones, infected gall bladder, adhesions, stomach ulcer, indigestion.

LIVES LOST AT SEA COMMEMORATED IN SERVICE ON VESSEL

Patriotic Orders and Public Officials Pay Honor on Board U.S.S. Apache.

WOMEN STREW WATERS OF RIVER WITH FLOWERS

Legion Post Holds Memorial for Hebrew Dead in Nation's Wars.

A picturesque service in commemoration of soldiers, sailors and marines who lost their lives at sea in the service of their country, was held yesterday on board the U. S. S. Apache with Representative Hamilton Fish, jr., as principal speaker of the day.

As the Apache steamed slowly down the Potomac to Mount Vernon, women of the auxiliary strewed the water with flowers and at Hains Point a red "buddy" anchor was dropped on the water. The U. S. Navy Band furnished music.

Among 200 people on the ship were Mrs. Edith H. Bird, president of the national auxiliary, U. S. W. V.; Judge Edward S. Mattias, commander in chief U. S. W. V.; Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, U. S. Coast Guard; Col. Rice W. Means, past commander in chief, U. S. W. V.; Senor Orestes Ferrara, Ambassador of Cuba; Benjamin F. Motley, commander, department of the District of Columbia, U. S. W. V.; Dr. B. C. McNeil, department commander of the American Legion; Gen. Amos A. Fries, past department commander, American Legion; Admiral Robert E. Coontz, national president of the Sojourners Club; Maj. Charles Demonet, commander, Military Order of the World War; Capt. Edwin S. Bettleheim, president, Sojourners Club, and Mrs. Addie Hickman, department president, Women's Relief Corps.

Representative Fish Is Speaker.

Representative Fish expressed, in his address, an urge for people not to forget circumstances and causes and results surrounding wars in which the United States has participated. He also said, "Let us give thanks that we are American citizens and live in a country that affords equal opportunity to all, and life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"Let us rededicate ourselves to the proposition that a Government of the people, by the people and for the people shall not perish from the earth. Let us reaffirm our belief in our republican form of Government, because it is the fairest, safest, soundest and most honorable and best form of Government devised by the mind of man.

"Let us be proud of it; let us cherish it and defend it against all its defamers and traducers and enemies, both from without and within, and serve notice on the socialists, Communists and facists that the American people intend to preserve our free American institutions, which have existed for more than 150 years and still represent the ideals and aspirations of countless millions of oppressed people throughout the world."

Service at Hebrew Cemeteries.

Another memorial service yesterday was at the Hebrew Cemeteries, under auspices of Vincent B. Costello Post, No. 15, of the American Legion, at which Maj. John C. Gotwals, District Engineer Commissioner, gave the principal address. Maj. Gotwals paid tribute to the Jewish people, who served this country in its wars and praised their part.

A salute was fired over the graves and was followed by "taps," blown by a detail of United States Marines.

Members of the Women's Overseas League held ceremonies at the grave of A. Grace Smith, who died here October 28, 1930, and was buried with military honors at Fort Lincoln Cemetery. In the World War Miss Smith served in France with the Y. M. C. A. Shortly after her return she was suddenly stricken with double pneumonia and died.

Four Plane Lines Are Consolidated

120 Ships of Companies in Merger Fly 32,000 Miles Daily.

Chicago, May 31 (A.P.).—Consolidation of management, operation, traffic and sales activities of four lines flying 12,000,000 miles annually was announced by F. B. B. Rentschler, head of United Aircraft and Transport Corporation.

The lines involved are: National Air Transport, Chicago to New York; Boeing Air Transport, Chicago to San Francisco; Pacific Air Transport, Seattle to San Diego; Varney Air Lines, Salt Lake City to Seattle, and the Northwest. P. G. Johnson, will be president of the new alignment.

Rentschler said the new lines' 120 planes are flown 32,300 miles daily over 6,110 miles of improved airways and carry 60 per cent of the Nation's airplane mail. The new line-up gives 18 hours service from coast to coast, with links between the Great Lakes area and the South.

Davis Sees Barbershop As Help to Democracy

Indianapolis, May 31 (U.P.).—Senator James J. Davis (Republican), Pennsylvania, today portrayed the American barber shop as one of the most important pillars supporting the temple of American democracy—and confessed that one of his long suppressed ambitions was to be a barber himself.

Davis, former iron-puddler and prominent in organization activities with that fraternity, spoke here at the dedication of the Barbers' Home, erected by the Journeymen Barbers' International Union of America.

"As a small boy in Sharon, Pa., before he became an iron puddler, Davis worked as "handy-boy" in a barber shop, shining the shoes and brushing the clothes of the patrons.

"I watched with fascinated eyes as the skillful barbers performed their artful work with razors and shears," he said, "and secretly I harbored an aspiration to become one of them. In imagination, I saw myself as a full-fledged barber, performing artistic jobs on the heads and faces of my fellow men and restoring the bloom of youth to withered cheeks by the magic of beauty creams and hot towels."

POST FLAG CONTEST ENDS ON SATURDAY

Time Limit for Filing of Designs for Capital Banner Nears.

Only five more days are left in which to submit your drawing of a suitable design for a flag for the District of Columbia. The closing time of the contest being conducted by The Washington Post in June, and to compete for the $25 prize which is being offered, all drawings must be mailed by that time.

A very interesting design was submitted last week by Frank R. White, who, in an explanatory note, said, "The Monument is used in the inset as a symbol of uprightnes and simplicity in memory of the great man for whom it was erected, and after whom our city was also named. Therefore the Monument, in preference to the dome of the Capitol, Miss Columbia, George Washington himself, or any other centerpiece."

Mrs. George T. Hawkins has sent in a well worked out pattern for the Washington emblem, and as an introduction to her accompanying letter, states "As a lifelong resident of the District of Columbia, I feel a keen interest in the flag contest being fostered by The Washington Post." This also is the feeling of many other Washingtonians.

Remember that there is a time limit, and that if you are to be the originator of the flag that you must get your design drawn at once. There is no stipulation as to the number of designs any one person may submit, and every one is eligible to compete.

Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt yesterday issued a certificate of suicide in the death of Mrs. Ada B. Held, 36 years old, who died Saturday in Casualty Hospital from effects of poison she is said to have swallowed at her home on Tenth street near B street northeast.

She was found in an unconscious condition by her grandmother, Mrs. Clara S. Woodward, who summoned the Fire Rescue Squad. After receiving first aid treatment, Mrs. Held was taken to the hospital where she died several hours later. Mrs. Woodward said she could assign no reason for her granddaughter's act.

BOYS' CLUB LEADERS TO OPEN FOUR-DAY CONVENTION TODAY

Handicraft Exhibit to Mark Session, With Awards Being Presented.

JELLEFF TO EXTEND OFFICIAL GREETING

13-Year-Old Athlete Will Be Given Medal as Winner Over 22,000 Youths.

Leaders in boys' work, including figures of national prominence, will gather here today as the Boys' Club Federation of America opens its twenty-fifth annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel. More than 350 will attend the four-day session, and while here they will not only discuss the problems of boys' work, but will view the handicraft of youth and have with them some of the representative young men for whom they are working.

Among these young guests will be Roland Young, 13 years old, of Chicago, who amassed the greatest number of points in athletic competition with 22,000 others. The boy, weighing only 80 pounds, easily beat out many of his larger rivals. During the convention he will receive a medal.

Award Handicraft Prizes.

This morning a committee of teachers from Washington schools will judge and award prizes for displays of handicraft executed by the boys in their vocational schools. Another committee of Washington newspapermen will judge their papers and award prizes for the best. The exhibit will be opened to the public at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon.

During the convention four "Close Harmony Gangs," from Fort Worth, Tex.; Chicago, Stamford, Conn., and New York, will serenade John Hays Hammond, vice president of the federation, at his home here.

The boys hope to be permitted to give President Hoover a concert on the White House lawn before the convention closes.

Jelleff to Extend Welcome.

For the routine and adult part of the meeting, the sessions will open with a luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Greetings will be presented by Frank R. Jelleff, president of the Washington Boys' Club. Cloise Crane, a member of the club here, also will welcome the guests. Other speakers at this session will be William Edwin, Hall, president of the federation, and Dr. George E. Vincent, member of the board of directors.

At 6:30 p. m. a dinner will be given by the Columbia-B. C. F. Training Course alumni, and at 8 o'clock the evening session will open. Discussions of the "Educational Values in Boys' Club Work," by Hubert Secretan, of London, England, and "Effects of Cycles of Business Depression on Boys and Young Men," by Dr. Arthur J. Todd, of Northwestern University, will be heard.

The day will close with an informal reception and dance at the hotel.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AN INTERVIEW WITH GEN. VON LUDENDORFF.

Q. GENERAL, I'm here to ask you——

A. Shush!

Q. What's the matter?

A. I thought I heard cannon fire. Proceed!

Q. General, I am here to interview you on world conditions. What do you think of things?

A. There it goes again.

Q. There what goes again?

A. Don't you hear it? . . . Heavy artillery . . . . Listen! . . . . There's a Big Bertha . . . . Shall I pull down the shades?

Q. What for?

A. I thought the sight of war refugees rushing by the window might depress you. What were you saying?

Q. I was asking you what you thought of the world outlook.

A. Haven't you heard about it?

Q. About what?

A. About the war?

Q. What war?

A. The next war. It's really on now, but it gets under way officially a week from Tuesday at 3:15, standard time.

Q. I hadn't heard about it.

A. That's strange. I thought I had sent notices to everybody.

* * * *

Q. WHO'S in this war?

A. Oh, everybody of importance. There's been such a rush to join that we've had to have a waiting list. England and France started it, but Italy, Germany, Russia, Japan, Turkey and Belgium have signed up. We're having the usual difficulty getting the Scandinavian countries to come in.

Q. How about the United States?

A. Hark! Am I right?

Q. What?

A. Hear that seige gun? I though it sounded like the type used by the American Army. Maybe the Americans are arriving, although I hardly see how they could do it without my knowing it in advance. I know everything in advance.

Q. I am quite confident that, although this war of yours may be under way, America has not entered as yet.

A. Well, she'd better hurry if she expects to be taken in at all. This is not going to be run like the last war.

Q. No? In what respect?

A. Well, for one thing, we're not going to let any country join whenever she feels like it. The rules of membership specify that any country wishing to participate in this war must join in advance. That was the trouble with the last war; we let people come in any old time. Listen

* * * *

Q. WHAT now?

A. Hear that rifle fire?

Q. Where?

A. Everywhere. It's particularly heavy in my right ear, but I think I detect increasing signs of an attack in my left. Look!

Q. What?

A. Can't you see? Not that window, the other one. The streets are running blood. Italy has fallen. There goes Stalin running down the street with a horse pistol in each hand. Ach! Help!

Q. What now, general?

A. I've been wounded!

Q. (With apologies to Irv Cob.) I hope it's nothing trivial.

FINANCIAL NOTE.

Whether I shall ever have as much money as August Heckscher
Is a matter of some conjecture.

DUNCAN UNDERHILL.

IMA DODO says she is not worried about this keep-kissable service of a certain cigarette company, as her boy friends always use the blindfold test anyhow.

A $53,000,000 saving is planned in the Postoffice Department. Hera's hoping they don't decide to get along with any less mucilage on the 2-cent stamps.

The liquor bill of the United States in 1929 has been placed by experts at $2,848,000,000. Well, well, anybody who would underestimate a liquor bill like that has never visited a night club and ordered a chicken sandwich.

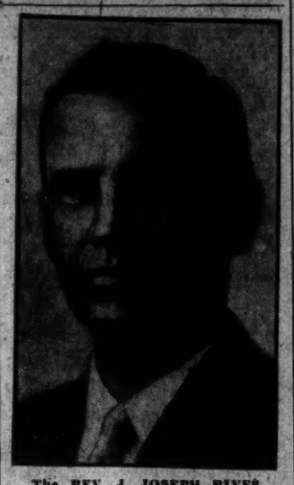
Christianity Termed Religion of Adventure

Character Wins Battles of Life, Rev. J. J. Rives Says in Sermon.



The REV. J. JOSEPH RIVES.

Christianity was seen as "a religion of adventure," in a sermon yesterday by the Rev. J. Joseph Rives, at the Francis Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church South, Fifteenth street between Irving and Lamont streets northwest.

Within every man, he said, a battle between good and evil is being waged, but in the end, he said, it is character, "the costliest product in the world and most precious," that triumphs.

His sermon follows:

"To him that overcometh I will give to eat of the hidden manna." Rev., ii:17.

"As a boy we used to wonder why God, who can do all things, should put a chestnut at the top of a tree and hide it inside a stickly burr. Why not put it on a bush where it could be easily gathered or shaken off? As a man we know why. The chestnut up there is a symbol of life in general. It says to the boy under the tree: 'You want me do you? You just try to get me and I will stick you all up.'

"A long time ago the forefathers of the present inhabitants of the Netherlands were walking along, looking for a place to settle and build a nation. When they stopped where their descendents are now living the ocean said: 'Move on, don't you stop here, if you do we will drown the last one of you.' But they stopped, pushed the ocean back and held it there with mighty dykes, drained lakes and built a wonderful nation.

Character Is Sorely Tested.

"The literature of almost all ancient people has the legend of the national hero fighting and overcoming the dragon.

"All these things simply teach us that when we start out to do something worth while, to win character, there are forces to defy us, to challenge us, and to see that we do not win. The good that is in a man is opposed by the evil in his own nature as well as by evil forces without. The devil seeks to destroy or to pervert every potential or actual good we may possess. Christianity is a religion of adventure, an energizing from within a cooperative work with God by which we are more than conquerors and which finally establishes us as greater than anything that can happen to us or oppose us.

"What is the function of opposition? Robert Louis Stevenson wrote to an English friend: 'Every man is born for struggle, and tastes his life only in effort and on condition that he is opposed.' Opposition first of all brings out the end we had in view. Things difficult to get stand out in bold relief and their value is more enhanced. Few of us value as we should our health until it is endangered. Opposition next compels us to take an inventory of our own resources—are we able to arrive? Have I within me those qualities that can lift me to the heights of this worthy goal? Then opposition drives me to seak aid that lies beyond my own powers. We enlist friends. We look to God, the source of all power. Then, of course, we take the measure of the forces that oppose us—their number, their strength, their quality.

Energetic Purpose Needed.

"Winning the battle is our real task. Some writer in a national periodical back in 1917 said that if you tell a German he is licked, then he is licked; but if you tell a Yankee or an Irishman that he is licked the fight has just begun. Here are some elements that enter into a winning program: First of all, the affirmative attitude, the realization that victory is worthwhile, that self-respect, social responsibility and honor require it, and that we are built for victory and no force or combination of forces can cheat us of real character. Psychologists talk about 'mind set.' The affirmative attitude is this, and more. Then the next element is selective thinking.

"Life is complex and certain situations are complex. We need to break these up into their constituent parts and pick out the moral and spiritual elements and incorporate these into a new and a spiritual synthesis. Next we must have energetic purpose.

Divine Leadership Advised.

Our chief source of victory is the consecration of all our powers to the will and pleasure of God. Anteus was the son of Neptune and Terra. He was a wrestler and was invincible so long as he was in contact with his mother, Earth. Hercules conquered him by lifting him into the air. Hold on to God and He will bring us to victory.

"The hidden manna. This is a very significant reward. All praise to Lindbergh. He deserved the band of music, the oratory, the welcoming committee, the honor. But when you go out to fight a great moral battle for character, overcome the monster of temptation, keep clean and honorable in all your dealings, no one hits you on the shoulder or takes you by the hand. The hidden manna is your reward, and this is enough. In his essay on heroism, Emerson says, 'The essence of greatness is the perception that virtue is enough.' Character is the costliest product in the world, and most precious. We are more than conquerors through Him who loved us and gave Himself for us."

Body Is Identified After Three Days

Man Found in Street Said to Have Stepsons Living Here.

After lying unclaimed in the District Morgue for three days, the body of a man found unconscious on Four-and-a-half street, near B street southwest, last Friday, was identified yesterday as Peter Doyle, 50 years old.

Identification was made by Paul Distl, of 226 Seventh street southeast. He said he had known Doyle only a short time, and did not know where he lived. The man had come to him several times during the last week, he said, and asked for something to eat. Police are attempting to locate Doyle's two stepsons, who, it is believed, live somewhere in the city.

Several theories have been expressed as to cause of the man's death. He died in Gallinger Hospital after he was found lying in the street with multiple bruises and fractures. It has been thought he may have been victim of a hit-and-run driver, but police are of the opinion he was murdered and robbed.

Pastor of Christian Church in Capital to Announce Decision Sunday.

Dr. B. H. Melton, pastor of the Ninth Street Christian Church, has received a unanimous call to become State superintendent of missions of the West Virginia Christian Missionary Society, it was learned yesterday. Should Dr. Melton accept the call it would be necessary for him to move to Charleston, headquarters of the society.

The pastor said last night he would announce his decision at services at the Ninth Street Church next Sunday morning.

The West Virginia Christian Missionary Society is the State organization of the Disciples in West Virginia and has under its supervision 160 churches, with a membership of approximately 25,000.

Dr. Melton has been a Washington pastor for eleven years, succeeding Dr. E. B. Bagby as pastor of the Columbia Heights Christian Church, and will soon close his sixth year as pastor of the Ninth Street Church. Should he accept the call to Charleston his work there would start September 1.

He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and completed his post-graduate work at Harvard. For two years he was president of the Disciples State Convention in Maryland and the District. He has been a trustee of Lynchburg College for twenty years.
